Borough Council Addresses Complaints About Service Of Princeton's Taxi Fleet

Borough Council spent considerable time at its meeting last week discussing problems in Princeton's taxi service. The meeting would have lasted even longer if there had been a representative of the taxi industry present. However, Taxi Owners' Association President Floyd Campbell said he had not been informed of the meeting.

Reached afterwards, Mr. Campbell said that complaints voiced by Mayor Sigmund and Borough Council candidate Lucy Mackenzie regarding difficulties in obtaining a taxi "were possible."

The Mayor said she had been called by a citizen who complained that it was impossible to get a taxi at 6:30 a.m. Ms. Mackenzie told how she had lugged her suitcases to the Witherspoon Street taxi stand on a Sunday afternoon at 2. She waited there a half hour, "and then I dragged the bags home."

"Princeton is growing fast," said Mr. Campbell. "There are going to be lots of growing pains and a lot of complaints about services."

The Taxi Owners' Association has some 22 members. Only a few drivers do not belong, said Mr. Campbell.

Mayor Sigmund said she would like a taxi to be at the Dinky to meet arriving trains. "Why is it that all year only 'Irish' Fasanella manages to be there?" she asked. "Irish is getting a bit along — not as along as most of us — and he can't be there at every train. Why can't the taxi association take up the slack and meet each train on a rotating basis?"

Councilman John Huntoon, who had met on an earlier occasion with representatives of the taxi association, told Council that an agreement had been reached to post a sign with the phone numbers

A Story with a Moral: Never Attempt A Get-Away Without a Full Tank of Gas

"You're not going to believe this," prefaced Lt. Mario Musso this week, as he began to relate the story of what had to be one of the easiest collars of his career.

It started shortly before noon Friday when Lt. Musso, on routine patrol on Route 206, saw a car on the west side of the roadway near Ewing Street with its flasher lights on. As he started to pull over, Lt. Musso noticed a man running toward the car, which appeared to be disabled. As the man was getting into the older model Chevrolet, Lt. Musso asked him what was wrong.

"I'm out of gas," replied the driver, who added that he intended to let the car roll down the hill. When Lt. Musso then inquired if the car had power brakes and the driver said 'yes,' he reminded him that power brakes would not work if the engine was not running.

"Do you have money for gas?" continued Lt. Musso. When the driver nodded yes, Lt. Musso suggested that he get in the patrol car with him and he would take him to a station to get some gas.

As he was pulling into the service station at Cherry Valley Road and Route 206, recalled Lt. Musso, the Township desk officer broadcast that a house on the northern section of 206 had been entered. A description of the suspect followed over the officer's car radio.

Lt. Musso grasped the Route 206 connection, looked

Residents Cheer Plan to Refurbish, Not Replace, Harry's Brook Bridge

An engineering firm's proposal to rehabilitate rather than replace the Harry's Brook Bridge was warmly welcomed by residents of Princeton-Kingston Road who turned out on a hot night to hear details of the proposal at the Township Committee meeting on Monday.

The next step will be for Committee to convince the New Jersey Department of Transportation (DOT) that the plan will meet its concerns for structural soundness and pedestrian and automotive safety, and should receive federal funding. But the residents broke into applause when Township Mayor Kate Litvack asserted: "We hope we will prevail, and that the DOT will see the wisdom of our design."

Maintaining that the Harry's Brook bridge is "in such poor condition overall that it cannot be rehabilitated," the DOT held a briefing for neighbors last March to drive across its point that replacement was required. The bridge was said to be structurally and geometrically unsound and its hydraulics, or ability to let rain-swollen Harry's Brook pass underneath, were termed "deficient." The DOT estimated $1 million for a new bridge that would have two 10-foot wide shoulders, plus $660,000 for a temporary diversionary road to carry traffic around the bridge during construction.

The widening from the present 34-foot width to 44 feet and construction of the diversionary road to the east of the bridge would require the removal of several mature trees and shrubs and considerable disruption for the neighbors. To preserve the appealing stone bridge, and to see if it could be rehabilitated

Recreation Department In Desperate Need Of More Ball Fields

"We desperately need additional ball fields," Recreation Director Donald Barr told the Planning Board last week.

Mr. Barr had been invited to outline the Recreation Department's present and future needs as part of the board's efforts in preparing a revision of the 1980 community Master Plan. At an earlier Planning Board meeting, the Board of Education had been invited to describe its future space needs, and other agencies will also have a turn, according to Margen Penick, board chairman.

Mr. Barr came to Princeton in 1964 after the Joint Recreation Department came into being. The Community Park fields had just been been installed, he said, and there at his passenger and told him, "Don't move!"

The suspect was taken to Township headquarters, where he was identified by a resident of the house as the person who had been seen inside the house. A look-up revealed that the car the suspect was driving had been stolen in Trenton.

The suspect, Gus T. Lankford, 27, of Trenton was charged with criminal trespass and receiving stolen property. At his arraignment Monday night in Township court, Lankford was held over for Grand Jury action in $5,000 bail on each of the two charges. He has also been charged with driving while on a revoked list, using fictitious license plates, and unlicensed driver.

Lt. Musso reported that nothing had been stolen from the house. While Lankford was inside, he said, a guest of the owner came to the house and observed the suspect. He told the homeowner, who was sitting in her rear patio, that he had seen a man in her house.

The two then entered the house looking for the suspect. As they were searching, they saw the suspect exit and called police. Lankford managed to drive only a short distance before he ran out of gas. Police checked the car later and ascertained that the tank was indeed dry.

"That," smiled Lt. Musso, "made my day. The moral of this story is never attempt a crime on an empty tank of gas."

Harry's Brook

at less cost and less disruption, Township Committee engaged Weidlinger Associates of New York City to undertake a feasibility study at a cost not to exceed $5,000. Weidlinger Associates is the engineering firm that took part in the rehabilitation of the Mercer Road bridge over Stony Brook when it was threatened with replacement by the State.

The firm came up with three alternate schemes. The first involves strengthening the gravity wall that supports the roadway by replacing earth fill inside it with concrete. To do this would require opening up the roadway bed, which in turn would require closing one lane of traffic each day from 9 to 3 for 2½ to three months. Total construction time would be four to five months.

The second scheme, intended to minimize work in the roadway bed and cause less disruption to traffic, involves strengthening the wall from the outside by providing new footings and buttresses to brace it in its present condition. The existing parapet would be demolished and reconstructed over the new portion of the wall, thus allowing a four-foot shoulder on either side of the roadway. Presently, the shoulder varies from six inches to two feet and is considered hazardous for pedestrians and bicyclists.

This scheme would also allow the addition of a wooden pedestrian walkway with a railing outside the parapet. The engineer's estimate for scheme I included $100,000 for a separate pedestrian bridge crossing Harry's Brook. Adding a sidewalk outside the parapet would add only $50,000 to the $1.26 million estimate for scheme II construction. The estimated cost for scheme I is $1.12 million.

Scheme III, which would add a second arch through which water could flow beneath the bridge, was not discussed by Committee Monday night. Based on his discussions with the DOT hydraulics engineer, Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser reported that the DOT was no longer concerned about the hydraulic deficiency of the bridge. Scheme III, which would have corrected that deficiency, was estimated at $1.32 million, plus $50,000 for a sidewalk outside the parapet.

All three schemes would accommodate the 40-ton weight limit, which is a State and federal standard. Comparing the DOT replacement proposal to the repair and rehabilitation proposed by Weidlinger Associates, Mr. Kiser found the only negative aspect of the latter to be the closing of one lane of traffic from 9 to 3.

Otherwise, the Weidlinger proposal would take six months rather than the year it will take for the DOT replacement; create only minor disturbance to adjacent properties; maintain the existing aesthetics and historic value; and require no relocation of overhead utilities or underground sewer siphon. Mr. Kiser said that the repair/rehabilitation proposal could be eligible for federal funding if it is recommended by the DOT. He told Committee that moving ahead on the plan to get Lake Carnegie registered with State and possibly federal authorities as an historic site would improve the chances of federal funding eligibility.

J.B. Smith, 485 Princeton-Kingston Road, and other neighbors congratulated Committee on the well-thought-out proposal and asked to be kept informed. When asked what was the best way to approach the DOT on the proposal, Santo Camo of Weidlinger Associates, who was present at the meeting, suggested a "be reasonable" approach. He also said be did not think the State would look favorably on disrupting traffic for the length of time scheme I would take, and thus favored scheme II.

Mayor Litvack said she thinks scheme II addresses the concerns of local citizenry as well as the concerns of the DOT. Committeeman Tom Poole was concerned that it "all sounds alarmingly easy" and suggested that the Township be well prepared to meet every objection the DOT is likely to raise when it meets with Township officials.

Residential Clustering Is Endorsed by Board

The Planning Board voted unanimously last Thursday to endorse a proposed ordinance requiring mandatory residential clustering on certain tracts in the Township, should they be developed.

Nine tracts have been identified as having environmental concerns, or historic or community values that should be protected or preserved. The ordinance would require that any future development on these tracts be concentrated in order to leave pre-mapped areas associated with these concerns or values as open space.

The nine tracts, selected from the 38 which were the subject of study by the Planning Board's consultants, Wallace Roberts & Todd of Philadelphia, include the Textile Research Institute, Prospect Avenue extension and Riverside Drive; Tusculum, off Cherry Hill Road; the Labatut property off Snowden Lane;

Also, property owned by Nassau Builders off Herrontown Road and Bunn Drive extension; the Gulick property, Route 27 and Herrontown Road; the McAlpin property, the North Road; the Winant property, for its vistas along both sides of The Great Road; Cadle/Princeton Day School property, for its ponds and stream; and the Gerard Lambert property, Province Line Road off Rosedale Road.

Objections. Two residents of the Braeburn development which abuts the Labatut property, came to the meeting to object to the proposed ordinance. Lowell F. Curran Jr., 23 Braeburn Drive, said he thought there was "dubious wisdom" in clustering and that it was inappropropriate on the Labatut property. He said the effect would be to "jam" lots half the size of neighboring development against existing properties.

"There is nothing special about the Labatut property to differentiate it from the rest of Braeburn, which was developed many years ago," Mr. Curran said. Although he acknowledged the house was said to be the birthplace of a signer of the Declaration of Independence, William Hewes, "how much of the property was there when he was born?" Mr. Curran asked. He urged the board to remove the Labatut property and reconsider the ordinance in its entirety.

Wendy Mager, speaking on behalf of the Friends of Princeton Open Space, asked whether a developer who agreed to preserve the pre-mapped area but wanted to build few homes on larger lots would "run afoul" of the proposed ordinance. Planning Board attorney Allen Porter told her that if development were concentrated on the part of the tract so designated — irrespective of the number of units — "it would still be a residential cluster."

The Friends of Princeton Open Space are negotiating with a New York bank, acting as trustees of the estate which owns Tusculum, to purchase and preserve the property. They are exploring means to finance the purchase, such as setting up a land trust and also finding a developer interested in developing part of the property in a sensitive way.

Following the public hearing, Planning Board Co-Vice Chairman Hans Sander moved the resolution to forward the mandatory cluster ordinance to Township Committee with the Planning Board's endorsement. The vote was unanimous.

Housing Element. In other business, the board held a public hearing on the interim amendment to the housing element of the Princeton Community Master Plan. The interim amendment is a description of how the Township expects to fulfill its affordable housing obligation. A more complete housing element, including Borough housing plans, is expected to be ready by August 1, along with an assessment of how the Planning Board is progressing on its review of the Community Master Plan.

There were no members of the public to speak either for or against the interim amendment to the housing element,

PSE&G Rates to Rise

The State Board of Public Utilities has approved a 7.3 percent increase in overall electricity rates from now until the end of 1989.

This increase is expected to lead to a four to five percent increase in residential electricity bills. The estimated impact on residential rates is lower because they rise at a slower rate to offset the volume discounts allowed to large commercial and industrial customers.

This rate change, the first since electric rates were lowered by 11.6 percent in February, 1987, was attributed to fuel costs that were higher than expected and to problems in the nuclear power industry.

Help for Compulsive Gamblers

The State Assembly has voted to create an Office of Compulsive Gambling to combat aggressively the problems faced by gambling addicts. If the bill is approved by the Senate and signed by Governor Thomas Kean, the office would set up various programs to fight gamblers' problems.

Character Education Appraved

The State Senate has passed a measure advocating the teaching of honesty, integrity and compassion in the public schools. The bill says, in part, "The Legislature finds and declares that character education is a legitimate and important function of public education."

It now goes to the Assembly for consideration.

which was approved unanimously. Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund asked for slightly different language about the Township's contribution to rehabilitation of Borough housing, which is in negotiation. And Township Mayor Kate Litvack said an amendment to the amendment, outlining the Township's plans to rehabilitate its own substandard housing, would be forthcoming.

Two Contracts Are Let For New Sewer Line

Township Committee has approved the awarding of two contracts totalling close to $2.2 million to build a new sewer line and pumping station.

The North Ridge Sewer System will serve the Griggs Farm project, future development in the adjacent Arcaro tract, the 40 townhouses already approved in the Ridge development, and the two office buildings in the Princeton Gateway Corporate Office development, one of which is almost completed. As Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser told Committee last Monday night, "This will open up the entire northern area for development."

Construction of the system is in two parts, hence the two contracts, but both will go forward simultaneously. Princeton Community Housing is depending on the completion of both parts by July 1, 1989 for residents moving into the Griggs Farm project, which expects to break ground early this fall.

One contract includes construction of a pumping station with a capacity of 300,000 gallons per day in the vicinity of Mt. Lucas Road and the Montgomery border. The project also includes a force main along the western shoulder of Mt. Lucas up the Ridge to Herrontown Road, and a gravity line down Herrontown Road to connect with the River Road treatment plant.

Low Bidder. A Glen Ridge contractor was the low bidder of eight companies who applied for the job and was awarded this contract for close to $1.8 million. The highest bid was $3.2 million, according to Mr. Kiser.

The second contract, in the amount of $395,753, was awarded to a Hillsborough construction company to construct a sewer line along Van Horne Brook from the Princeton Ridge development border, past Griggs Farm, and under Route 206 to hook up with the system on the east side of the highway. Twelve companies applied for this job, the highest bid being more than $1 million.

Construction of both projects is expected to start in July. The project will end with the repaving of Herrontown Road, including the part that is now a dirt road.

Parking Lot Redesign Is Tabled for a Week

Township Committee decided to table discussion of a plan to re-align the Community Park parking lot to add 30 new parking spaces.

Short & Ford architects recommended squaring the lot, which is now on the diagonal, to gain additional parking spaces during the discussions on the location of the firehouse. Committee wants to go ahead with the project, whether or not the firehouse is located across the street in the Valley Road building lot. A proposal to award a contract to Fellows Read and Associates of West Windsor for $31,500 to design the lot was on the agenda when Committee met last Monday.

Although the proposal was discussed briefly, it was felt that further input from the Board of Education and the Community Park PTO would be desirable. Also it was suggested that since the Recreation Department, which manages the Community Park facility, is a joint Borough/Township agency, the Borough might want some suggestions that should be incorporated before a design contract is awarded.

The Recreation Department originally was opposed to the notion of squaring off the parking lot, afraid that it would be losing grassy play area near the toddler pool. However, Committeewoman Phyllis Marchand, who is liaison to the Recreation Board, reported to Committee at an earlier meeting that Recreation officials and the board members agree that very little green area will be taken and the benefits in terms of additional parking outweigh the loss.

Bond Rating Revised For Princetons, Schools

Moody's Investors Service has raised the ratings on the general obligation bonds of Princeton Township, Princeton Borough, and the Princeton Regional School District to Aaa, Moody's highest long-term rating. All formerly had an Aa rating. The general obligation debt of only three other townships and boroughs within New Jersey are rated Aaa based on those issuer's own credit standing. There is only one other school district in the State with an Aaa rating on its debt without credit enhancement.

Moody's said, "The rating revision recognizes the continued expansion and the favorable wealth levels of the Township and Regional School District. The Borough remains a wealthy, stable residential community. The presence of Princeton University, along with a favorable location, has encouraged high-quality development in the area, with employment composed of professional, education, research, and high technology jobs."

This assessment of the financial condition and management of the Princetons by Moody's will result in the towns' saving between a quarter and a half percent in interest rates on any of their borrowings.

"Local elected officials are pleased by this new rating by Moody's," said Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund. "We believe that it reflects deserved confidence in the financial management of the Princetons."

Joan Hill Suspension Upheld in Superior Court

Superior Court Judge Paul Levy has upheld Princeton Borough on its 30-day suspension last year of Joint Civil Rights Director Joan Hill. Ms. Hill was suspended, without pay, after an administrative hearing conducted by Borough Administrator Mark Gordon.

The hearing investigated charges by Township Judge Sydney Souter that Ms. Hill had abused her position as the director of the Joint Civil Rights Commission. Mr. Gordon found that Ms. Hill had behaved in a manner unbecoming a public employee during her processing at Township Police Headquarters after her arrest on August 27, 1986, for driving while intoxicated.

Ms. Hill filed the complaint in Superior Court after the failure of her appeal to Council of the 30-day suspension. According to Borough Attorney Michael Herbert, Judge Levy said that Ms. Hill had been granted appropriate notice, and that the Borough hearing was fair.

Ms. Hill, who has the right to appeal Judge Levy's decision, said she had not heard anything and therefore could not make any comment.

Princeton Man Indicted In Alleged Mobil Swindle

A Mercer County Grand Jury Monday indicted a Princeton resident on charges that he stole at least $35,000 in kickbacks and consultant fees through a phony corporation that he set up while he was an executive at the Mobil Research and Development Corporation in Hopewell Township.

The four-count indictment charges Michael T. Tayyabkhan, 62 Erdman Avenue, with two counts of theft by deception, falsifying records and using a corporation for criminal purposes. If convicted, Mr. Tayyabkhan, who said that he knew nothing about the indictment, faces 10 years in jail, or $15,000 in fines, or both and restitution.

According to Mercer County Assistant Prosecutor Jeffrey Rubin, Mr. Tayyabkhan, in his capacity as manager of Mobil's engineering methods and technical training unit, was in a position to authorize and employ independent consultants for special projects.

The indictment alleges that betwen June 1983 and May 1986, Mr. Tayyabkhan hired consultants whom he would then order to file bills through a bogus firm, Joseph D. Ackworth, Inc., which he had created. After the consultants had submitted their bills, Mr. Tayyabkahn would, allegedly, inflate them by 20 percent, resubmit them to Mobil and then approve payment to Ackworth.

Mr. Rubin testified that Mr. Tayyabkahn collected about $35,000 for his own use from 13 special consultant projects that totaled $170,472.

Mr. Tayyabkahn is also alleged to have demanded kickbacks from certain hired consultants for special projects at the Mobil firm in Hopewell. In one instance, the defendant allegedly accepted a $4,000 kickback, Mr. Rubin said.

Borough Will Take Look At Group Meeting Needs

Borough Council President Marvin Reed has recommended that a study be made of whether the public might be allowed to use Borough buildings for group meetings. At last week's Council meeting, Mr. Reed said that groups are having difficulty finding places to meet in Princeton. "Most churches," he said, "charge considerable amounts."

Up to now, the need for taking out insurance has been an obstacle in allowing groups to use Borough buildings. Mr. Reed said he would like the study to cover insurance requirements and costs, as well as to define the actual costs of renting the spaces. Janitorial services are one of the major items that will be considered.

Borough Clerk Penney Edwards-Carter said that groups are sometimes allowed to use Borough facilities for one night, but are not permitted to have them on a regular basis.

Councilwoman Jane Terpstra said she would like to have the Public Library included in the study. "They have told groups that, if we let you use the community room, then we'll have to let others use it," said Mrs. Terpstra.

Mayor Sigmund noted that this is the general purpose of a community room in other libraries.

The study will try to determine what the Borough should charge groups that want to use space in its buildings. These buildings include, among others, the Arts Council, Suzanne Patterson Center, Borough Hall, and the three firehouses.

Record Funds Raised For PHS Scholarships

The third annual Princeton Golf Classic has resulted in record-breaking proceeds for the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation.

Held at Springdale Golf Club last month, the event brought together 80 golfers from the Princeton-area business and educational communities to support scholarships for the Princeton High School Class of '88. The major tournament sponsor was the accounting firm, Coopers & Lybrand; many area firms sponsored foursomes or tees. A total of $28,000 was raised — the most from any single event in the PRSF's 20-year history.

There were many winners. Philip Levy's 72 was the lowest gross of the day, while Joe Bellardo had the lowest net. Sam Woodward scored the lowest on the Calloway system, and Marie Tassy hit the longest drive. In drawings, Jamie O'Donoghue won a trip to Bermuda and Alan Haines won a weekend at the Forrestal Village Marriott.

As the PRSF announced the awards to the Class of '88 last week, it became clear that there were many more winners. According to Mimi Ballard, a board member, a total of $36,000 for tuitions has been awarded to 22 seniors in amounts from $200 to $2,400 on the basis of demonstrated need.

Some of the colleges at which students will be pursuing their educations include Douglass, Hutgers, Mercer County Community College, Trenton State College, the University of North Carolina, the University of Michigan, the University of Pennsylvania, Johns Hopkins, Holy Cross and Fairleigh Dickinson.

The group's treasurer, Florence Burke, commented, "We're grateful for the support the community gives us in our endeavors to help these young people."

Car Passenger Charged With Crack Possession

A passenger in a car stopped by Borough police for having a headlight out was later charged with possession of crack.

The passenger, Sallie Weaver, 25, of Wilton Street, was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia. Her case will be forwarded to a Grand Jury.

The car was stopped by Ptl. Ronald Wohlschlegel at 2:47 last Wednesday morning on Markham Road. While interviewing the driver, the officer noticed a kitchen knife on the car floor on the passenger side and observed several pieces of aluminum foil tightly folded together.

As a result of the officer's observations, and after he found a crack knife in her purse, Weaver was arrested and charged. The driver of the car, whom police did not identify, was not charged.

Charged with Shoplifting. Cindy Banks, 29, of Trenton, was charged last week with shoplifting, after she was observed by a store employee stealing three dresses and two belts worth a combined $443 at Epstein's in the Princeton Shopping Center.

In her arraignment the same night in Township court, Judge Sydney Souter sentenced Banks to 30 days in jail on a previous charge of shoplifting. She will be heard on her most recent charge when she is released.

$700 in Cash Is Taken In Redding Circle Theft

A thief entered a Redding Circle apartment overnight without force last week and stole a metal box containing $700 from a closet shelf.

Nothing else was taken and Township police report there are no suspects.

A screen door was pulled open last week to enter a dormitory room in Spelman Hall on the University campus. Taken from the living room area were 14 compact discs valued at $210.

Three bicycles were also reported stolen from Spelman Hall.

A 15-speed Ross valued at $300 was stolen last Wednesday afternoon from the eighth entry where, police said, it had been secured with a lock; an unlocked, 10-speed Schwinn, valued at $150, was taken overnight later in the week from the fifth entry, and a $200, 12-speed Nishiki model was taken between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday from a rack where it had been secured with a chain and lock. All of the victims are students.

$120 Bowl Is Shoplifted From Art Gallery in PSC

A small wooden bowl with decorative carving on its lid, valued at $120, was shoplifted Thursday from a display shelf at the Sheila Nussbaum Gallery in the Princeton Shopping Center. There are no suspects.

A Province Line Road resident told Township police that someone had entered his garage between May 10 and June 18 and stolen a 16-inch chain saw worth $330. Police report the garage was not locked.

$28,000 FOR SCHOLARSHIPS: The Princeton Golf Classic held last month raised a record $28,000 for the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation. From left are Peter Soderberg, PRSF board member; Mortimer J. O'Shea, president of the Trust Company of Princeton and Classic co-chairman; Mimi Ballard, PRSF board member, and Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund.

In one of two bicycle thefts in the Township, a girl's 10-speed Raleigh valued at $100 was stolen last Wednesday afternoon from a rack at the John Witherspoon School. The following day, a 12-year-old lost her blue 10-speed Ross bike when she failed to secure it to a rack in front of the Community Park Pool.

Cash, Money Order Stolen. During a half-hour period last week, someone entered an office on the third floor of Merwick, off Bayard Lane, and stole $43 and a $275 money order from an employee's desk. The victim is a resident of Plainsboro.

A Borough resident parked her car overnight during the weekend in the Park Place lot, leaving behind in the unlocked car a nylon bag containing articles of clothing valued at $175. When she returned at noon Sunday, the bag was gone.

Last week, someone broke a two-foot hole in a front display window at The Country Mouse, 164 Nassau Street, reached in and grabbed a stuffed mouse valued at $100. The mouse was recovered a short distance away. Police, not sure if anything else was stolen, are waiting for an inventory report from the owner.

Borough police also listed one bicycle theft: a student's 10-speed Raleigh, locked to itself on the Walnut Lane side of Princeton High School, was taken sometime during the last three weeks.

PHS Serves as Canvas For Painting Vandals

Some 'art work' was done at Princeton High School by vandals between 12:30 and 1 Tuesday morning.

Police report that the numerals "88" were painted in white on the double doors in front of the school and that the letters "HABI" were painted on the front concrete steps.

More initials — which police said would make sense only to the culprits — were painted on the circular drive and sidewalks, and several trees, benches and trash cans in front of the school also received the white paint treatment.

In addition, toilet paper was thrown all over the place, Capt. Thomas Michaud reported. The police investigation is continuing, he said.

Two cars parked on the Princeton Medical Center grounds were targets last week of criminal mischief.

A four-inch rock was found inside a 1985 Chevrolet parked between 3 and 11 p.m. Monday in an employees' lot. The car's window was broken but nothing was reported taken.

Earlier in the week, the windshield of a 1986 Oldsmobile was shattered by an unknown object while it was parked overnight in the doctors' lot on the corner of Witherspoon Street and Franklin Avenue. Again, nothing was taken. Police identified the victim as a resident of Westfield.

Judge: 6 Months in Jail For Shoplifting in Acme

In Township court Monday, Phillip A. Maund, 10 Lytle Street, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $525 by Judge Sydney Souter for shoplifting in the Acme Market. Maund, who was also fined $30 for the Violent Crime Compensation Board, received 20 days credit for time already served.

Bobby C. Derricot, 1600 White Pine Apartments, Lawrence Township, was fined $125 and $30 VCCB for possession of alcohol by a minor. For possession of drugs, he was fined $275 and $30 VCCB, had his license suspended for six months and was placed on a year's probation.

In addition, under the mandatory Drug Enforcement and Demand Reductional Penalty provision of the State's new comprehensive drug reform act, which is assessed against persons convicted of a drug violation, Derricot was fined the mandatory minimum of $500 and also ordered to pay a $50 lab fee.

David A. Lees, 116 Magnolia Lane, was fined $215 for passing a school bus and $65 for improper passing. Fined $65 each were Marie G. Daout, 12 Red Oak Row, careless driving, and Margarita Ramirez, 107 Library Place, failure to keep right.

Earlier in the week, Eric L. Cook, 21 Redding Circle, was fined $515 and sentenced to one day in jail for driving while his license was suspended. He also had his license revoked for an additional six months.

Kathleen M. Laurie, 88 Harris Road, was fined $275, $30 VCCB and placed on probation for a year for possession of a stolen American Express credit card. A charge of theft was dismissed.

In two motor vehicle charges, she paid $20 for no insurance and $20 for unregistered vehicle. She was also fined a total of $290 for a collection of unpaid parking tickets, including $10 contempt of court assessed on each ticket.

Judge Souter also suspended her license for 30 days, with the provision it will be restored — if the ticket fines are completed. If not, the license will remain suspended.

Woman's Body Is Found: Police Suspect Suicide

The body of a 61-year-old resident of Route 518 in Franklin Township, who was reported missing last Monday by her husband, was found Thursday floating in the Delaware and Raritan Canal near Route 518.

The victim, Gloria Latterman, who was an employee of LaVake Jewelers on Nassau Street, was spotted by a jogger running along the canal Thursday evening. The exact cause of death will not be known, police said, until the completion of an autopsy. The body was identified from dental records.

No foul play, however, is suspected by Franklin Township police, who had launched a search for the victim.

Capt. Denis McCarthy commented that the victim left behind correspondence indicating that she had thought about suicide in the past. He said that Mrs. Latterman had been depressed lately and might have wandered away from her home. The reason for her depression isn't know, he added.

Mrs. Latterman had been driven to LaVake's last Monday morning by her husband. Normally, she returned home by bus at 4, but when she hadn't returned by Monday evening her husband notified police.

560 Housing Units Slated For Plainsboro Farm

The Plainsboro Planning Board has given informal conceptual approval to a proposal to put 50 housing units on 81 acres of the former Walker Gordon Farm. The developer is Linpro Development Corp., and the development would be known as Fountain Oaks.

The concept plan calls for 141 patio homes (single family detached units); 58 manor homes (two-unit townhouses designed to look like a single family home); 321 townhouses with four units to a building; and 40 affordable housing units containing approximately eight units to a building. The manor homes would front along Plainsboro Road, along with 84 of the townhouse units.

A recreation center, possibly including a swimming pool, would also be along Plainsboro Road, with another larger recreation center in the middle of the development. The affordable units would be located at the back of the tract, near open space and wetlands, but also near the railroad tracks.

The main existing driveway into the tract, which is lined with tall trees, would be preserved. A secondary existing entry would be re-routed to form a four-way intersection with Pasture Lane and Plainsboro Road, necessitating the removal of some trees.

At one time zoned for office-research and light industrial use, the property was rezoned for residential use last April by the Plainsboro Township Committee. Included in the zoning was the provision of 40 affordable housing units, which will double the amount of Mount Laurel housing in Plainsboro.

Plainsboro is waiting to hear whether Superior Court Eugene D. Serpentelli will agree to reducing the number of affordable housing units Plainsboro must provide. Currently the Township is bound by an agreement it signed in 1985 to provide 575 units of low and moderate income housing.

Major Housing Project Set for Princeton Pike

The Lawrence Planning Board reluctantly gave final approval last Thursday to a high density housing development which will bring 274 townhouses and apartments to Princeton Pike near Fackler Road.

The development, known as Maidenhead Meadows, is planned for a 27-acre tract opposite the former Lawrence Tree Farm now owned by DKM Development. Richelieu Development Corp. narrowly received preliminary approval for the development in 1984 on a 5-4 vote.

The developer later sued the planning board after it refused to grant a one-year extension to the preliminary approval and also denied final approval last year. In a court order issued last month, Mercer County Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy remanded the plan back to the board, giving it until June 30 to act.

SUNDAY IN THE PARK: Those who stroll through the Mountain Lakes Environmental Center on Sundays can enjoy a stop at the "Cafe," a concept of Princeton High School art teacher Rosemary Blair, chairperson of the Mountain Lakes Center. Mrs. Blair's students will prepare and serve refreshments on Sundays from 1 to 4 to benefit the Education Project of the Environmental Center. Hospitality is offered by, from left, Natascha Hak, Mrs. Blair, Nicole Klein and Rebecca Garza.

A key issue is the lack of municipal sewer lines in the area. The Ewing-Lawrence Sewerage Authority (ELSA), which is running at about 60 percent capacity, said it would provide service to the development, installing an ejector system and new sewer lines along Princeton Pike toward Interstate 295.

However, there is disagreement whether the Township Council or ELSA has the authority to approve a new sewer line in an area which is not planned to be sewered. That issue has also been raised in another lawsuit currently before Judge Levy. The suit was filed by Squibb Corp. in an effort to resolve a dispute over the route of the sewer line needed to serve its expansion.

The Lawrence Planning Board knew last Thursday that if it did not act by June 30, the developer would receive automatic approval, and if it denied the application it would find itself back in court. Nevertheless it took several motions to gain a sufficient number of votes to grant the approval. The first motions failed because four members voted to abstain, and an abstention constitutes a "no" vote.

Planning board attorney Joseph Stonaker advised the board that if the application was rejected and taken back to court the board would not win. Members then changed their votes from "no" to "yes," with one member changing from "no" to "abstain." The final tally was six "yes" votes to two abstentions.

William Agress said he had not voted for preliminary approval in 1984 and would not vote for preliminary approval today. But he said, "I don't see I have a lot of choices — the plan meets all conditions." Joyce Copleman characterized the plan as "terrible," and added: "I voted 'no' for the preliminary approval. I am voting emotionally and not legally. I am making a protest vote again."

Mayor Carol Harle abstained because she had "very serious problems" with the plans for sewerage lines to the site.

Middle School Principal Gets Anti-Drug Award

William Johnson, principal of John Witherspoon Middle School, has been selected to receive the first Intergovernmental Drug Committee Recognition Award. This award will be presented annually to an individual or organization making a significant and measurable contribution to the public awareness of the danger, reality and presence of alcohol and drug abuse. Special attention will be given to nominees who have had an impact on youth.

Mr. Johnson, principal of the middle school for 12 years, was honored for his continued concern and commitment to the recognition of substance abuse among young people and to

Bridge Opening Soon

The Port Mercer bridge is expected to be back in operation on Thursday or Friday. The bridge, which connects Quaker Road to the Route 1 malls and the Quaker Bridge Road overpass, was closed on June 6 for a complete rehabilitation.

The work was originally supposed to be completed by Monday, June 27, but has come in slightly ahead of schedule, said State Department of Transportation spokesman Randy Linthurst.

The Port Mercer bridge, which spans the Delaware & Raritan Canal, is one of 50 canal bridges owned by the State Department of Environmental Protection and maintained by the DOT.

The Campaign for Rutgers has reached the $100 million mark in a $125 million fund drive. The amount was raised in four years of a six-year campaign.

The campaign is the private sector's contribution to the University's Fund for Distinction, undertaken to provide the financing required to place Rutgers in the top rank of the nation's comprehensive research universities. July for Hulfish Street Cars will have to bounce up and down on Hulfish Street for at least another month, according to Borough Engineer Carl Peters.

By request of Mayor and Council, the Engineering Department has removed Hulfish Street from a contract covering eight other street reconstruction jobs. Bids will now be taken on Hulfish Street alone, which should allow work to begin somewhat earlier than had orginally been anticipated.

The Hulfish Street bids are expected to be in by the week of July 5, and the earliest the repaving job can begin is late July, said Mr. Peters. It is expected to take a week and a half.

The work will cost $35,000, split fifty-fifty between the Palmer Square Corporation and the Borough. Palmer Square had excavated Hulfish Street, at its own expense, to make necessary utility improvements. The work was checked out by the Borough on June 13.

Mr. Peters said reconstruction should be delayed no more than a week on the eight roads that were separated from Hulfish Street in the bidding process. These streets include Library Place, Lilac Lane, Boudinot Street, Morven Place, and South Harrison Street.

YMCA Registration Set For Summer Session

Registration for YMCA summer classes is under way. Swim lessons, day camp and adult fitness are a few of the offerings. The summer session begins Monday and continues through Saturday, August 20.

Swim lessons for ages six months to senior citizens are available. YMCA swim instruction involves mastering a progressive series of skills at the participant's own pace and is taught by certified instructors. Adult group or private swim lessons are offered for beginning, intermediate or advanced swimmers

Lifeguard courses and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes are available as is a choreographed water exercise class twice a week during noon hour in the Nassau Inn pool.

The YMCA day camps are filling up. There is a Toddler Time half day camp for campers between the ages of 18 months and three years, and a Sunshine Camp for ages three to five. Both are held at the YM-YWCA facility.

Camp Discoveries at the Johnson Park School site offers youngsters in kindergarten through sixth grade swim lessons, outdoor and nature activities and arts and crafts. The counselors include three who are from France, Hong Kong and Spain.

Teenagers 12 to 16 enjoy planning group activities in the Princeton area. A limited budget helps them learn to plan creatively. Last year, the group canoed the Delaware River, camped overnight at Johnson Park School, and competed in a mini tennis tournament.

For active youth 7 to 11 years old there is Sports Clinic, a camp devoted to good sportsmanship while learning new skills and game strategy in soccer, baseball, basketball or volleyball. Each camp has a parents' night to help families enjoy the camp experience together. Working parents may register children for pre- and post-camp.

A complete line of fitness classes for adults will begin Monday. Low impact to high impact aerobic classes are scheduled in the mornings and evenings throughout the week. A beginning fitness class for adults who are starting an exercise program is offered two evenings per week. There is also an exercise class for adults with young infants. "You and Me Baby," offered three mornings a week

For registration materials and information call the YMCA at 497-9622. A summer program brochure is available for the asking.

Police Runners Meet Here Tuesday

Two benefit torch runs, comprised of police officers and originating in different parts of the State, will converge Tuesday in Princeton. Area officers will complete the final part of the two runs and meet June 28 at 6 at Nassau Street and Washington Road.

Then the Olympic Torch will be carried into Palmer Stadium to officially open the 1988 Special Olympic Sports Competition. Law enforcement officers throughout the State are sponsoring the Torch Run to benefit the 10,000 mentally retarded children and adults who have registered for the Special Olympics

To make their torch runs a success, police request support for Adopt-A-Cop, a program wherein each participating officer needs to receive a minimum of $100 in donations for the opportunity to run. Sewer Expansion Meeting

A meeting of the mayors and planning officials of the member municipalities of the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority will be held Wednesday, June 29, at 7:30 in Borough Hall.

The meeting has been arranged by the SBRSA at the request of Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who asked that such a meeting be convened to discuss phasing of expansion of the River Road sewage treatment plant beyond its present 10 million gallon per day capacity. Mayor Sigmund would like the proposed expansion to 13.6 million gallons per day to be phased to slow development in the area and allow road capacity to catch up.

Mayor Sigmund Rebuts DOT Commissioner Gluck

The following is a response by Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund to a letter from DOT Commissioner Hazel Gluck which was printed in TOWN TOPICS June 8, 1988.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

What does the Department of Transportation's refusal to consider an Alternate Route 1 have to do with:

• The proposed replacement of Harry's Brook Bridge on Route 27 with a larger bridge, and the possible replacement of the historic bridge at Stony Brook on Route 206 with a new, "improved" model?

• The DOT's insistence that Clarksville Road and 20 other roads in West Windsor be either widened or built over the next 17 years? (Or Dey Road and six other roads in Plainsboro? Or Province Line and Cold Soil roads and seven other roads in Lawrence Township?)

• The deteriorated conditions of so many Princeton and area roads?

Clues abound. In an Associated Press story published on Sunday, New Jersey was cited as the state with the most heavily travelled roads in the nation, with each mile of road carrying an average of 4,230 vehicles a day.

"You all take the cake," declared Sally Thompson, a research director for The Road Information Program, a national nonprofit organization. Right.

And the bumps and grinds and potholes as well, for as Linda Artlip, identified as director of communications for the State Department of Transportation picturesquely observed: "Roads deteriorate very fast if you have tons of traffic on them. They wear out, just like a piece of carpeting."

Now consider what occurs when Princeton Borough, or any other local municipality, or the County or State, must close a worn-out street (or bridge) to repair it. Lamentations are loud in the land, to wit: "Why did they close road X? There aren't enough roads around here to begin with."

Precisely — there aren't enough roads around here.

The Sunday Associated Press story highlights the particularly painful nature of the problem in our own area when it declares that, "Today, across New Jersey, Route 1 is synonymous with tie-ups and frustration. The problem is most acutely felt by Middlesex and Mercer County motorists, however, because they have almost no alternate routes."

What is the State DOT's answer to the ever-harsher reality of too few roads for evermore cars for Middlesex and Mercer motorists?

Here's how Debbie Lawler, the DOT's official spokeswoman, was quoted in a May 16 AP story: "There's no way we can build more roadways. We must move people with the system we have."

And moving people with "the system we have" includes the widening of that system to accommodate ever-increasing traffic.

Hence the "improvements" to the lovely old bridges that form the entrance ways to Princeton at Harry's Brook and Stony Brook. Thus the multitude of widened residential roads from North Brunswick through Lawrence (with Cranbury and East Windsor also required to "pitch in" to the solution), deemed absolutely necessary by the DOT if we don't want to spend anywhere between two and five hours traveling from Trenton to New Brunswick.

I continue to believe that a modern expressway built to accommodate the modern traffic conditions (deliberately created by the Route 1 municipalities through their zoning ordinances) is infinitely preferable to the jerry-rigged DOT proposal which "Mixes improvements to Route 1 itself with 70 local road improvements. Consider the fact on the way to becoming a three-lane road in each direction, Route 1 will be a one-lane road during the course of repairs.

Compare and contrast.

Would an Alternate Route 1 — a 17-mile continuous expressway commencing at Route 295 (with a western outlet to Route 1 just south of the planned route 130 separated interchange, an eastern outlet to the New Jersey Turnpike south of Exit 9, and interchanges to access all of the major employment centers on Route 1, arouse local opposition?

Sure it would, even though it could be built almost a quarter of a mile from any existing residential development and much farther than that from most.

But, the DOT's own Route 1 Corridor study realistically determines that its plan for local road widenings will "force municipalities to face some difficult political decisions," as "many of the existing roadways in the region are fronted with residential properties" and "widening roadways will affect the character of these properties." To say the least.

Will an Alternate Route 1 be expensive? Certainly, but again I refer you to the DOT study, which warns municipalities and counties that to accomplish the DOT's Route 1 goals, "at least a quarter of a billion dollars (1984 dollars) in local roadway construction will be required." That's in addition to the $525 million (in the same 1984 dollars) that the DOT must spend on improvements to Route 1 itself.

Are there environmental problems associated with an Alternate Route 1? Probably, although the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Geological Survey fail to identify the "numerous freshwater wetland areas" Commisioner Gluck often references (without specification) when citing her reasons against this road.

But present Route 1 obviously crosses the same stream corridors as would any parallel alternate highway, and new construction there would require equal consideration to any genuine environmental concerns.

The simple truth of the matter is that the reasons given by Commissioner Gluck to oppose an Alternate Route 1 expressway: cost, local opposition, and potential environmental problems, are not specific to this proposal but are generic put-downs that could be used to pre-doom any significant new road proposal in a State that is "very deosely populated, heavily developed and getting more so every day" — again to quote Commisioner Gluck.

I have been a fan of the New Jersey DOT generally and Commissioner Gluck, in particular, for many years.

Certainly, I've been an advocate, both early and often, of regional growth controls, Transplan and public transportation (where it's practical) having saved the Dinky, looped the loop Bus, and lobbied successfully for vans for all seasons and reasons for most of my tenure in public office.

And "better management" of our existing roadways sounds fine.

But, after a while, if development continues, even the best-managed road system becomes saturated and new roads become necessary. It's a sad day when the department in charge of roads says it can't build them any more. If that's true, then the only responsible alternative to Alternate Route 1 is to halt the development that causes the need for new roads in the first place.

Tap Princeton Talent To Develop Growth Plan

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is a letter I have written to Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund:

I applaud your ambition to sek higher political office. However, before you go, if you must, will you do something to arrest the political anemia in Princeton and its neighboring communities: Appoint a task force to develop a strategic growth plan to take this region into the future — before chance or narrow, selfish interests prevail.

Neither the corporate-dominated regional study group nor the legally required county plan makes proper use of the enormous talents residing in Princeton and especially Princeton University.

Many United States cities and towns have grown indiscriminately and have become virtually ungovernable, riddled with social, health, economic and political problems because they lacked a carefully thought out plan. More than one community has relied on new roads and wider highways to dominate its development initiative.

I believe that you should create a task force now because 1) we are at the core of one of the nation's fastest growing areas that could easily and without sufficient warning fall into that bizarre pattern of expansion that characterizes troubled areas of the country; and 2) we have unique resources available but largely untapped to avert this prospective disorder from occurring.

Consider for a moment the extent of our wealth: Princeton's grand institutions — the University, Center of Theological Inquiry, Princeton Theological, and Institute for Advanced Study — two former presidents of the University, distinguished architects, engineers, lawyers, educators, pollsters, artists, environmentalists, scholars and students in various fields, former advisors to United States presidents and others whose vision could be integrated into such a strategy.

Few communities of any size offer such talent, and we should ask and expect that the combined resources of concerned citizens and governments throughout the area will develop an innovative and practical plan that will guide us into the next century. (I am certain that you have called on many individual members of the community, but I speak of concerting the talents of many into a single plan.)

What a rare opportunity for students of the Woodrow Wilson School, for example, to help research and develop such a plan. In my view, the plan should include objectives, activities in support of objectives and funding. Clearly government alone, as you well know, can neither be expected to fund such a task force nor implement its recommendations.

I would hope that Princeton — and not merely its name — would be the heart of such a region, but that expectation may already be lost. The emphasis on development seems to have shifted to the Route 1 corridor. (The effect of widening that roadway may in the long run simply swallow us up.)

As a native of Princeton, a graduate of Rider College, a local merchant and an adjunct member of the Trenton State College faculty, I am concerned about the area and its random growth. To help ensure the long-term presence and quality of life for the region and its citizens, I urge you to appoint such a study group. Your success in drawing out the abilities of your fellow Princetonians and the resources of Princeton University will be a fair test of your leadership.

Because I believe that a problem exists and the appointment of a task force could contribute importantly to a solution, I am taking the liberty of sending copies of this proposal to members of the community in hope that it will stimulate discussion.

Community Is Thanked For Success of Classic

To the Editors of Town Topics:

We wish to thank all of those individuals who combined their energy and enthusiasm to make the third annual Princeton Golf Classic a success. The proceeds, approximately $35,000, have been turned over to the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation. Each year, the Foundation provides scholarships to enable many deserving seniors to attend colleges and vocational schools.

Special thanks are due to Coopers & Lybrand, the major sponsor, and to Springdale Golf Club. The committee was inspired by the hard work of Eva Collins and Tom Petrone, who are responsible for the growth of this annual event.

Planning is already under way for next year's Classic, and we know we will continue to enjoy the support of the Princeton Community.

Cub Scouts Say 'Thanks' For Success of Sale

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As chairman of the Pack 43 Cub Scout light bulb sale of Princeton, I would like to express the appreciation of the pack to the many hard-working individuals and civic-minded organizations that made this year's fund-raiser such a success.

As in many years past, the Princeton Hardware Corporation supplied the pack with thousands of G.E. light bulbs. Joe Luther and his staff were unfailingly helpful and courteous, handling our large order with ease and good humor. We also want to extend our sincere appreciation to Thomas Sweet, E.N. Lodge, Best Corporation, Kinko's Copy, the Trophy Shack, and Jeff Norton and his staff at the George Washington Council for contributing their time and resources to the pack.

Some of the many individuals who helped us include George Taber, pack chairman; Mike Kent, cub master; Anchalee Burbach, treasurer; Ellen Boneparth, Ellen Souter, Rebecca Maynard, Arda Bishar, Jim Gould, John Eng, John Slapp, Jose Alcantara, Eric Munson, Brian Harney, Katherine Watterson, Wes Neff and Jean Leigh, all den coordinators. Special thanks go to the hard-working light bulb committee: Alice and Tim Baker, Rita Lall and Cynthia Lanchester.

Finally, I would like to thank the Princeton community for its generous support of our annual sale. Time and again our cubs met Princetonians who were unhesitatingly generous and kind. Working together, the scouting tradition lives on.

Thank you all!

ASK ANGELA

Angela Horan
Diet Center Counselor

Are You a "Feast or Famine" Dieter?

If you can go all day without eating because you're not hungry and then feel starved in the evening, what you are probably experiencing in the evening is a drop in your blood sugar concentration. When this happens, the brain sends out signals for you to eat. Your brain knows the fastest way for you to elevate the blood sugar is to eat sweets, so, unfortunately, these hunger pangs you feel probably include a craving for sweets also.

At Diet Center, we teach you how eating on time and on a schedule and selecting appropriate foods can help you to maintain a more constant blood sugar level. Eating properly is the only way to eliminate the craving for sweets and the extreme hunger you have experienced.

FMC Director to Head United Way Campaign

Jack G. Lowenstein has been appointed chairman for the 1988-89 United Way-American Red Cross Campaign. This year's campaign kick-off in September will commemorate the United Way's 50th year of service to the Princeton area.

Mr. Lowenstein is director of administration of FMC Corporation's Chemical Research and Development Center in Plainsboro. He is responsible for all services required by the research and development scientists and engineers and has been responsible for process and engineering development for both the Industrial Chemical Group and the Agricultural Chemical Group. A Princeton resident for 24 years, he has been with FMC for more than 30 years.

Mr. Lowenstein is on the board of trustees of the Princeton Transportation Management Association, chairman of the Regional Forum Transportation Task Force and chairman of the Princeton Area Red Cross Blood Drive Committee. In the United Way, he chaired the campaign's research and industry division in 1984.

Under his leadership, FMC has been a successful Pacesetter company for past campaigns. Last year, he was a member of a special MACSI committee that analyzed the United Way's operation as part of a strategic planning process.

of the Witherspoon Street taxi stand in the window of the station waiting room.

Mr. Campbell pointed out that the sign at the Dinky will not guarantee someone will be at the stand to answer the phone. "Calling any number does not guarantee that a person is there," he said. "We don't want to be there. If we're there, we have no appointments. We cannot satisfy all these needs; we want to be moving, not at the stand."

The association president said that he had recently passed the Dinky on two separate occasions. Both times there were three cabs waiting, and only one got a customer. "A taxi driver might be on line at Witherspoon Street," he said. "If he goes to the Dinky and gets no one, he has to go back and go to the end of the line."

He added that, even as president of the association, he does not have the power to dictate that cabs be at the Dinky. "There is no such thing — even in New York."

"Who Would Pay?" To Mayor Sigmund's request for a direct phone line from the Dinky to the taxi stand, Mr. Huntoon responded that this issue had been raised at past meetings with the taxi owners' association. "The question of who would pay for it came up, and that is as far as it went."

Currently, citizens who have complaints about overcharging are asked to call Borough Clerk Penney Edwards-Carter. She, in turn, calls the driver with the complaint. Mr. Campbell said he would be happy to go along with Mr. Huntoon's suggestion that complaints also be forwarded to the association.

Most complaints, said Ms. Edwards-Carter, relate to overcharging between municipalities, not within the Borough. Mr. Campbell said that taxi drivers have a chart giving such charges. For example, the fare to the Princeton Junction train station, from the Dinky, is $8.25 from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m.; $9 from 1 to 7 a.m.; and $7 the rest of the day.

He said that taxi drivers are permitted to charge $1.75 per mile when there is no set fare, and a passenger has the right to ask any driver how he arrived at the fare.

Responding to Council President Marvin Reed's suggestion at the meeting that there be a central telephone number for all taxis, Mr. Campbell said such a centralized system would kill taxi service in Princeton. "Who's going to pay for the person to answer the phone?" he asked. "We don't make the kind of money to hire a 24-hour employee."

Mayor Sigmund told Council that she wants negotiations to begin with the association on having taxis meet each train at the Dinky. She also wants a review of the taxi industry's hours of operation. "Availability should be the name of the game, if you have a taxi license," she said. Mr. Reed added that if the taxi industry did not provide enough service, the Borough would issue more licenses.

Ball Fields

have been no new playing fields established since, despite the growth of the community in the intervening 24 years.

Even the Community Park fields are not without problems, he went on. Under the "nice green surface," tree trunks and other debris which were covered over in the construction have gradually decayed, leaving sink holes which have to be filled in each year.

But primarily Mr. Barr was concerned with the growing numbers of participants and the competition for space to play ball. The Recreation Department has responsibility for Community Park and all its facilities, and for Community Park North. It also programs Marquand Park in the Borough and Grover Park behind the Shopping Center in the Township.

"Community Park is booked solidly seven days a week, spring through fall." Mr. Barr said. There are four softball/Little League fields with backstops on the perimeter, which are in use all spring and summer. In the middle there is another field that is used for activities ranging from youth tackle football to men's soccer and lacrosse. The public schools also use Community Park for baseball and softball.

Grover Park and Marquand Park are booked five nights a week for the softball games of business and community groups, Mr. Barr said. His main concern, however, seemed to be for the needs of the Little League and the Princeton Soccer Association, two burgeoning youth organizations that are run independently of the Recreation Department. Walter Bliss heads the Little League and Ted Terpstra the Princeton Soccer Association.

The number of Little League teams has doubled from eight in 1985 to 16 in 1988, Mr. Barr says, adding that Mr. Bliss estimates this growth to be a "continuing" phenomenon. There are 220 participants in Little League, which uses the Community Park fields on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and also on Tuesday on the one field not preempted by softball.

Just Staying Even. "We desperately need more ball fields," Mr. Barr reiterated. "We're just about staying up with the teams we have, but with any kind of expansion, we won't have a place for them to play." Little League now runs from age seven to 13, instead of eight to 12, and with the surge in interest Mr. Barr expects there to be a Babe Ruth League for 13 and 14 year olds in two years.

Going to pitching machines, which deliver the ball in the strike zone every time, is expected to increase the enthusiasm for the game, he added.

The Princeton Soccer Association is growing at an even more rapid rate. "We have 500 soccer enthusiasts, and not one soccer field in Princeton," he reminded the board. The Soccer Association uses the fields on Washington Road that belong to Princeton University. The girls program began two years ago with two participants and is up to 150.

The Soccer Association volunteered to donate several thousand dollars to the University for certain repairs to the fields in exchange for assurances as to their continuing use, Mr. Barr said. But the University declined the contribution, saying that it did not want to be under an obligation in case it needed the fields for its own purposes.

Nowhere Else to Go. "It's a little scary," he went on. "If the University does decide it needs those fields, we have nowhere to put the program."

Mrs. Penick asked whether there were other sports coming on the way Little League and Princeton Soccer have. "Not now," Mr. Barr responded. "But I wouldn't have guessed years ago that lacrosse would become so popular. We have 100 in the men's league that plays at John Witherspoon School and 70 in the women's league that uses Princeton High School."

"How much land would you need, ideally?" Mrs. Penick asked. Mr. Barr said that was a difficult question. He noted that there were very few black youngsters in the Princeton Soccer program, because the Washington Road fields are not centrally located, hard to get to without transportation. "We need something that is more centrally located," he said.

There was discussion of the Van Dyke-Wight tract off Snowden Lane, which had been purchased with the idea that it would accommodate Community Park activities when those fields reached the overflow stage. Mr. Barr pointed out that trees and brush have grown up on the tract in the interim, and clearing them would be expensive.

There was also discussion of the Little League's longstanding desire to make Grover Park its home, with dugouts, and a fence to hit over for a home run. Lights have also been proposed, to double the number of games that could be played on an evening, but such a proposal brought strong objection from the neighbors.

Mr. Barr said he had made a capital budget request to create Little League fields in Grover Park or softball fields on the Sewer Operating lands every year since 1978, and each year the request is put off by the municipalities.

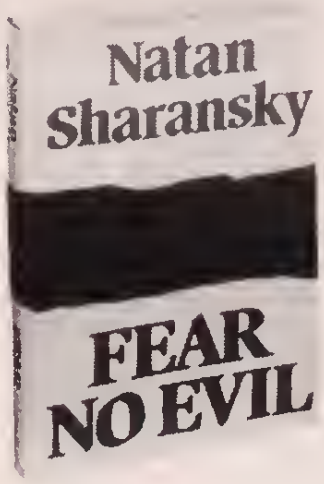
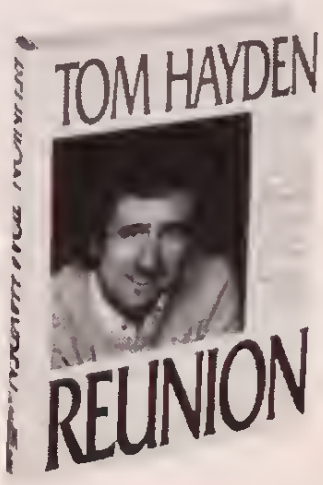
SUMMER READING
For those who feel summer reading doesn't have to be frivolous.



Fear No Evil. Natan Sharansky. Random House, $19.95.

Leading Soviet dissident and Jewish activist Natan Sharansky is world renowned for his defiance of the Kremlin. Fear No Evil is the truly remarkable story of his nine harrowing years in KGB custody, told with irresistable warmth, and even humor. Sharansky's accounts of punishment cells and bad treatment, of the physical and psychological torment he endured are especially graphic, yet the book is filled with great humanity. It is a tribute to courage and the indestructable human spirit.



Reunion: A Memoir. Tom Hayden, Random House, $19.95.

America's best-known student radical of the 1960s writes of his involvement in the historic civil rights and anti-war struggles with striking candor and 20 years of political perspective. On the personal side, Hayden tells of his painful estrangement from and eventual reconciliation with his parents; his youthful marriage to a fellow activist; and his 15-year marriage to Jane Fonda. This intimate personal memoir and often startling reassessment is also a richly-detailed chronicle of one of the most tumultuous periods in U.S. history.

GRADUATES

Princeton Man Graduates After 40-Year Hiatus

David Klein, 6 Greenhouse Drive, has fulfilled a vow he made to himself 40 years ago. He has graduated from Harvard Business School. Mr. Klein, 68, graduated as a Baker scholar, with high distinction, in the top five percent of his class.

He first entered Harvard Business School in the fall of 1946, shortly after his discharge from the Army. A job offer from the Foreign Service, however, caused him to leave.

When he left Harvard — with only one semester to go — he promised himself that he would return to finish what he had started. "This was a major piece of unfinished business," he said.

In the decades that followed, Mr. Klein, a father of six, had a distinguished career with the State Department. He served as vice consul in Mozambique, Russian specialist in Burma, and consular and economic officer in Moscow and Germany. In 1962, he served on the Soviet desk in the State Deparatment, and later worked under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson as a member of the National Security Council staff.

Up until December, Mr. Klein ran the American Council on Germany in New York City, a nonprofit group dealing with American issues in Germany. He will shortly begin the development of international programs as an assistant to the president of Fairleigh Dickinson University.

PEOPLE

In the News

Jessica Seigel, 17, a Princeton High School graduating senior, is the first recipient of the Martha Ellen Gottlieb Fund Award. She is the daughter of Jayn Rosenfeld and Jerrold Seigel.

The fund was created in 1987 by friends, colleagues and family in memory of Martha Ellen Gottlieb (PHS '68) to encourage qualified Princeton High School students to follow a singing career. A $1,000 award will be made each June to a graduating high school senior who wishes to pursue a career in vocal music. The fund is administered by the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation.

Although Ms. Gottlieb made her career in theater management rather than music, she was a fine musician who loved music in all its forms, but was passionately devoted to vocal music. She helped several of her contemporaries, through encouragement, coaching and accompaniment, in their pursuit of singing careers.

Miss Seigel has been a member of the PHS Choir for three years, the Cat's Meow for two, and has played violin in the PHS Orchestra for four years. She has taken voice lessons for two years from Jane Olian at Westminster Conservatory. This year, she won second prize in the Stokes Competition and received a merit award from Westminster Conservatory. Before entering Vassar College in the fall, she will be a junior music counselor at Buck's Rock Art Camp in New Milford, Conn.

Miss Seigel will use the proceeds from the award to continue private voice lessons with Ms. Olian in New York City.

David W. Regan, of Princeton Junction, received an art purchase prize during commencement exercises at The Peddie School, Hightstown.

Linda Wever, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wever, 24 Moore Street, received a perfect grade-point average of 4.0 for the second semester at Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. She is a graduate of Princeton High School.

Susan Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Gray, of Princeton, was a member of the Williams College women's spring track team, which ended the season with a 9-0 record. A graduate of Princeton High School, she qualified for the indoor national championships before being injured outdoors.

David L. Holmes, of the Eden Institute, served as a site visitor in the United States Department of Education's 1987-88 Elementary School Recognition Program.

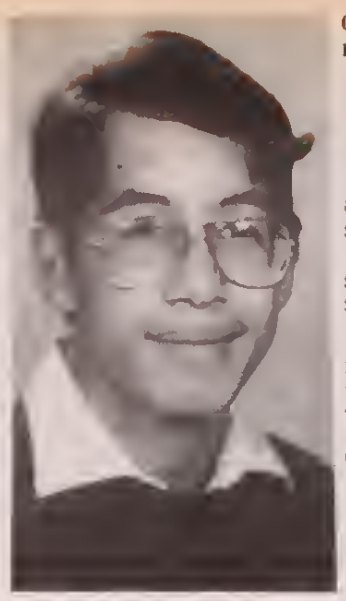
As a site visitor, Dr. Holmes visited several of the 364 public and private schools that were considered for special recognition as outstanding schools in this year's program.

Anne E. Wright, 387 Nassau Street, was named to Mortar Board, a senior honorary society at the University of Delaware that recognizes outstanding scholarship, leadership and service.

Susan G. Dineen, an English teacher at The Hun School, has been awarded a 1988 Fellowship for Independent Study in the Humanities by the Council for Basic Education.

The $3,000 fellowship provides financial support of independent summer study designed by the teacher.

Susanne J. Salkind, daughter of Alvin and Marion Salkind, 51 Adams Drive, has been named to the dean's list at Bates College, Lewiston, Me.



Rodrigo Philander, a sophomore at Princeton Day School, has been awarded a scholarship for his outstanding achievement as a violinist in the Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra. His scholarship for music study was awarded at the third annual Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra Strauss Ball.

Four area high school seniors are among 149 in the State selected to receive Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarships. The scholarship is in the amount of $1,500.

The students are, Nicholas Darnton and Serena Vnlpp, of Princeton High School, and Jonathan Harrod and Paul Koenig, of Hopewell Valley Central High School.

Marine Pfc. Shawn D. Slaughter, son of Janice M. McEwen, 15 Shirley Court, has reported for duty with the 1st Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif. A 1986 graduate of Princeton High School, he joined the Marine Corps in May, 1987.

Cord Johnston, an eighth grader at Princeton Day School, received a plaque for ranking sixth in the State of New Jersey in the national Mathcounts competition. He had previously ranked third in Mercer County.

Law Firm Leases Space At Palmer Square North

The Philadelphia law firm of Drinker, Biddle & Heath, which has merged with the Princeton law firm of Smith, Lambert, Hicks & Beidler, will occupy all but 1800 square feet of the fourth floor at 100 Palmer Square.

According to Princeton resident and partner A.C. Reeves Hicks, "Smith Lambert, Hicks & Beidler has been in Palmer Square for 30 years." The 210-member combined firm also has offices in New York City, Washington, D.C., and Marlton.

Palmer Square Associates, which owns the four-story office building on Hulfish Street, said that office and retail space available in the facility are 80 percent leased.

The Pullman Corporation will move into two floors of the 70,000-square-foot building this summer. About 14,000 square feet of office space remain to be leased.

State Provides $18,000 For Convention Bureau

The State of New Jersey has allocated $18,000 to establish a new Princeton Area Convention and Visitors Bureau. Chairman of the new bureau is James Furda, director of operations for the Holiday Inn, Route 1.

Princeton is one of five areas in the State to receive matching funds to help establish convention and visitors bureaus. The funds will be used to cover start-up costs.

In presenting the awards at a luncheon in Atlantic City sponsored by the New Jersey Office of Business Tourism Development, Governor Thomas Kean said that the state was now the fifth most popular destination for recreational tourism, but still lags in attracting lucrative corporate and association meetings and conventions.

The convention and visitors bureaus will function as a central source of information on meeting properties and facilities. Also, the bureaus will promote cooperation among areas in marketing their facilities.

Shifts in Food Outlets Set for Route 1 Malls

Forrestal Village has announced that a farmer's market will open at the site of Chef's Market, the gourmet food shop which recently closed.

This announcement came just days before Kaufelt's, a gourmet market at Market-Fair, announced its plans to close as soon it completes the sale of its inventory.

Robert I. Kaufelt said that, although the store had received great acclaim from the community, food industry, and press, its sales were insufficient to continue operation. It had been open for seven months.

The new Village Farmers Market at Forrestal Village will feature fresh Jersey-grown produce, meats, local cheeses and dairy products, and home-baked goods. It will also offer prepared foods, gourmet coffee and tea, and a salad bar. The market is scheduled to open in early August.

Transportation Seminar Sponsored by Developer

Bellemead Development Corporation and Greater Princeton Transportation Management Association (TMA) are sponsoring a transportation seminar for all Princeton Corporate Center tenants Thursday, June 30, at 9 a.m. at Thomas Cook, 3 Independence Way. The purpose of the session is to initiate a comprehensive transportation management program, designed to ease the commutes of those who drive on Route 1 to Princeton Corporate Center every day.

Representatives of Princeton Corporate Center firms will take part in discussions about effective transportation management strategies. Mary-jo May of Greater Princeton TMA will present the concepts of flextime and staggered hours as ways to beat the peak traffic times. Donald R. Cuming, executive vice president of American Re-Insurance, and Gail Nelson, vice president of People Ridesharing Systems, will discuss ridesharing initiatives. In addition, John Myckoff of the New Jersey Department of Transportation will give an update on the plans for Route 1 improvements.

Bellemead Development is undertaking similar efforts at many of its other locations throughout New Jersey, and TMA is also assisting other firms in the Route 1 region in establishing transportation management programs.

Obituary

Rose Scheider, 15 Linden Lane, died peacefully on the evening of June 16, 1988. She had lived in Princeton since 1949, and had been during all that time an active member of the Princeton Friends Meeting (Quakers). She had pioneered modern language testing with Educational Testing Service; even past her retirement in 1970 she continued up until the present to serve as a consultant with the American Association of German Teachers, who honored her in 1984 with a plaque "in grateful recognition of her dedicated service and unsurpassed contribution to the profession and to the Association."

She was born in Czechoslovakia and came to the United States in 1940, and to Princeton in 1949. She held a doctoral degree in law from the University of Vienna and practiced law in Czechoslovakia.

She celebrated her 88th birthday last month. Her son. Walter, of Ann Arbor Michigan, and her granddaughters, Holly, of Oakland California, and Wendy, of Ann Arbor, express their gratitude to Rose's many loving friends who helped and comforted her through the last difficult months of her life.

Some years ago, Rose had a bench for quiet personal meditation built in the woods behind the Quaker Meeting House; memorial contributions may be made to the Princeton Monthly Meeting of Friends, c/o Laura Klinger, treasurer, 71 Quaker Rd., Princeton NJ 08540, and designated to the Rose Scheider Memorial Fund, for the purpose of restoration and preservation of the meditation bench. A memorial service was held at the Friends Meeting June 21. She is buried in the Meeting cemetery.

SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL SET: The Rev. Robert R. Cushman, left, director of Christian Education for Princeton Alliance Church, models one of the t-shirts that will be available to participants in "Kid's Klub Camp," the church's summer vacation Bible school that will be held August 1 through 5 at Princeton High School. With him is Dr. Michael P. Valentine, church pastor.

RELIGION

Bulletin Notes

Princeton Alliance Church's vacation Bible school, entitled "Kids' Klub Camp," for children ages 4 through ninth grade, will be held daily from 9 a.m. to noon, August 1 to 5, at Princeton High School.

The Princeton Puppets, Dennis, Peter, Sally, and assorted friends, will appear each morning during the school session to assist the children in singing and worship. Their activities are under the guidance of the church's Minister of Christian Education, the Rev. Robert R. Cushman, and his wife, Linda.

"Kid's Klub Camp" will include crafts, recreational activities, music and a Bible program. The music program is under the direction of the Rev. Douglas A. Peterson, Minister of Music at Princeton Alliance Church, and his wife, Linda. "Kid's Klub Camp" derives its name from "Kid's Klub," the children's music program at Princeton Alliance Church, where weekly meetings include games, refreshments, crafts and singing.

While school is in session, a special women's program will be offered, with a study seminar and craft workshops. All area women are invited to attend. A nursery is provided for those attending this class.

The program is open to children and women of all faiths. There is no registration fee.

Further information is available from the church office at 50 Princeton-Hightstown Road, Princeton Junction, 799-9000.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist Sunday school will hold classes every week during the July and August vacation months.

Instruction is given in the truths of the Bible and how they can be applied in daily life. Children and young people to age 20 are invited to attend. Classes are on Sunday mornings at 10:30 at the church, 16 Bayard Lane.

The Prince of Peace Lutheran Church will begin its summer worship schedule on Sunday with a single service at 9:30 replacing the two services normally held. The church is air-conditioned, baby sitting is available, and a coffee fellowship follows the service at 10:30.

Everyone is welcome and questions about the church or the services can be answered by calling 799-1753.

Thomas W. Gillespie, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, has returned from a visit to Hungary, where he talked with Christian leaders, church officials and refugees in the Hungarian Reformed Church. The Hungarian Church represents the strongest Reformed presence in the Eastern block countries.

Bishop Karoly Toth, one of four bishops in the Jungarian Reformed Church, was Dr. Gillespie's host during the two-week trip. He had participated in Gillespie's inauguration as seminary president in Princeton in 1983.

The Rev. Frank C. Strasburger will be the preacher Sunday at 10 at the Princeton University Chapel. His sermon topic will be "A Touching Miracle."

Mr. Strasburger, an alumnus of Princeton, Johns Hopkins University and the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass., is the Episcopal chaplain at the University. He has taught at St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass., and the Gilman School in Baltimore, Md., was a curate at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, New Canaan, Conn., and served two years as Canon of the American Cathedral, Paris, France.

The Men's Day Committee of Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church will sponsor a Bake Sale Saturday from 9 to 6 at the church, 170 Witherspoon Street. The Rev. David B. Cousin is pastor.

Windsor Baptist Fellowship, a newly forming congregation serving the Princeton area, will hold a social get-together for people interested in learning more about the new fellowship on Sunday from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Charlotte Newcombe Center, located at the end of Emmons Drive at the Charlotte Rachel Wilson apartments, Route 1.

For more information, call 497-0052. Windsor Baptist Fellowship is a mission of Raritan Valley Baptist Church in Edison, and is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention.

With puppets, songs, crafts, and stories of King David and Jesus, children aged 4 through sixth grade will study "God's Chosen King" in Vacation Bible School at Princeton United Methodist Church. The school begins Sunday and continues through Thursday, June 30, from 6 to 8:15 each evening.

Pam Nugent of Lawrenceville will make puppets for a nightly puppet-story telling show, and Mark Greenstreet, of Princeton, will don Biblical costumes to tell the Bible stories. Mark Windsor, of East Windsor, is leading the music.

For information, call coordinator Teri Jewell at 924-2613. Parents are asked to register their children as soon as possible. A donation of $3 per child or $5 per family is requested.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

SYCAMORE TREES

with Sam deTuro

Woodwinds Associates

1988 is not going to be a good year for the Sycamore and London Plane trees. The cool, wet weather during the last few weeks has undoubtedly enhanced disease development. Currently, many trees are devoid of leaves due to extensive premature defoliation. It's too late to spray now.

Most trees should begin to refoliate next month, however, since the causal agent (Gnomonia) is only active during cool spring weather. For best results now, prune dead or cankered branches (when practicel) and increase tree vigor through proper fertilization and irrigation.

To keep your trees and shrubs healthy, call WOODWINDS at 924-3500 for annual feeding and maintenance. We are glad to be of service!

14 Down and None to Go, as the Last Bolster Child Graduates from PHS with Most of His Family on Hand

MEET THE BOLSTERS: Only two Bolsters were missing last Saturday as the family gathered to celebrate Richard's 18th birthday and his upcoming graduation. Richard is in the front row, third from right, with his mother, Tink, behind him. Next to Richard on the left are Jane, with her arm around her husband, Steve Wertimer, and Libby, and on the right, Carrie and Peggy. Standing, from left, are Joe, who was also celebrating Father's Day, John, Tom, Michael, Jim, Mary, Andy and Martha. The two missing members are Joe Jr., the comedian, who was in Florida, and Charley, traveling in Turkey.

The graduation of Richard C. Bolster from Princeton High School Tuesday night marked the end of an era — the Bolster era — in the Princeton school system.

From the time Joe Jr., the oldest of Tink and Joe Bolster's 14 children, entered kindergarten in the fall of 1958 until Richard's graduation with the Class of 1988, there has not been a year without one — and more often six or eight — Bolsters in Princeton public schools.

Richard, who celebrated his 18th birthday last Sunday, was born the spring before Joe Jr. began his senior year at Princeton High School. Joe Jr. was a member of the first kindergarten class at Johnson Park School when it opened in 1959; Richard was finishing fifth grade in the spring of 1981 when Johnson Park closed. The peak year in terms of numbers of Bolsters in the Princeton School system was probably 1975-76: the first five — Joe, Carrie, Jim, Andy and Michael — had graduated, but Richard was in kindergarten, and the other nine — Jane, Mary, Tom, Martha, Charley, Libby, John and Peggy — were at various stages.

Except for Tom and Libby, who attended Chapin School for a couple of middle school years, the Bolsters went straight through the system, leaving a legacy of achievement and participation in sports, and in other areas as well. At the high school alone, at least eight Bolsters earned Gold Keys, for character and contribution to the community, six of them in the junior year.

Excelled in Sports. They excelled in swimming, field hockey, soccer, lacrosse, basketball and track. Joe was captain of the track team; Michael's cross country team won the state championships. Jim's Little Tiger basketball team won the Mercer County championship, and he was a member of the Boys Leader Corps, assisting with the gym program.

Carrie was a member of the Girls Leader Corps and was a good field hockey and lacrosse player in the days before girls' sports received much notice. However, in her senior year, 1971-72, she went with Betty Hewell to a conference in Texas on health, physical education and recreation and gave a talk on what high schools should be doing in terms of women's sports

Andy not only was a member of the varsity soccer team that won the State championsip, but he won the men's 100-yard breast stroke in a State meet long before swimming became a recognized sport at PHS. It was Peggy Bolster who, a decade later, in 1984, joined with Bridget Mahoney to get the swimming team started and was captain her senior year. Peggy also captained the freshman field hockey team, was president of her class and a representative to the student council all four years.

Jane and Mary played on a field hockey team that won a State championship and a lacrosse team that won the Mercer County title in 1976. Tom's soccer team, which he captained in his senior year, won the Colonial Valley championship twice in a row. He also played varsity lacrosse, and was president of the Student Council during the Middle States evaluation process and during a controversy that received a great deal of publicity and was the subject of a court case. At issue was whether or not Moon Children, a play studded with obscenities, should be produced at the high school.

Other Activities. Libby played varsity soccer and varsity lacrosse and is listed in her year book as belonging to the Horticulture Club. John played varsity soccer and was a member of the junior varsity wrestling team. Richard swam all four years at PHS and was captain of the team this year. He also played soccer and lacrosse and acted in The Crucible and two Woody Allen plays.

This listing leaves out academic honors, such as Princeton University courses in Spanish, which Peggy took, the history prize Andy won, and any advanced placement which Bolsters may have received at college.

Counting Richard's acceptance at Fordham this fall, all 14 Bolsters have gone on to a four-year college or university. Peggy will be spending her junior year at the University of Wisconsin in Athens, Greece, this fall, because she is majoring in classics. Having spent the summer of her junior year in high school in Uruguay, she is fluent is Spanish.

As a group, the Bolsters have tended to major in English or history in college, and to continue their involvement in sports. John has just graduated from Denison College, where Joe, Jim, Jane and Charley also graduated. Charley earned Phi Beta Kappa, majoring in history, and was an outstanding soccer player. This year he has been traveling in Europe, Greece and Turkey.

Joe Jr. is perhaps the best known of the Bolsters, having launched himself as a successful stand-up comic with regular appearances in comedy clubs in cities all over the United States. He has also been on the Johnny Carson and David Letterman shows, among others, and may soon be doing a stint at the new Catch A Rising Star at the Hyatt Regency Princeton.

According to his parents, here, knowing that he has an audience familiar with the Bolster family, he might unleash his routine about his family — one-liners such as: "My family is the only family in Princeton that has to get a parade permit to go out for a walk." Some audiences find his tales of living in a household of 14 children too unbelievable to be funny, his father says, so Joe Jr. drops that line of thought and takes up another.

Other New Yorkers. Jim was a 12-letter athlete at Denison, earning varsity letters in soccer, swimming and lacrosse. He was awarded an NCAA scholarship to graduate school, which he deferred while he played professional soccer briefly with a Connecticut team. After earning a master's in education administration at Michigan, and serving as assistant soccer coach at George Mason University in Washington, D.C., he returned to Denison to coach swimming for five years. He is presently the varsity swim coach at Columbia University.

Jane, another Denison graduate, is assistant to the director of an art gallery devoted to photography in New York City. She is married to Steve Wertimer, an aspiring film director whose name may be seen on the list of credits of Moonstruck and Bright Lights, Big City. They live in New York City, and get together regularly with Joe, Jim, Michael and Andy, all of whom live in or near Manhattan.

Andy lives in Westchester County and works for a company manufacturing women's sportswear, particularly fashion sweaters. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, majoring in American Civilization, and is regard-

'Something's Afoot' Is Biggest, Zaniest Show of Off-Broadway's Season

Something's Afoot, which opened at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre in Hopewell last weekend, is the biggest, zaniest, funniest show of their season — a high-powered musical whodunit that spoofs Agatha Christie mysteries and the popular tunes of yesteryear.

Full of dancing and singing, set in the requisite isolated country estate cut off from the rest of the world, and containing a mysterious succession of bizarre murders, Something's Afoot provides two hours of colorful action and continuous laughter.

Director-designer Robert Thick and his choreographer-wife Julie Johnson Thick have been busy: assembling and deftly coordinating an eclectic ensemble of ten, with mostly first-rate voices and considerable acting ability; building the large entrance hall of Lord Dudley Rancour's manor house, suitably furnished with exotic booby traps, multiple levels, eight entrances, fiendish special effects and a daunting array of props that includes Amazonian poisoned darts, man-eating Chinese vases and a dozen 1935-style telephones; and staging a vigorous, wacky, engaging show of substantial appeal to all ages and tastes.

Two sparkling production numbers frame the first act and set the tone, with Cynthia Lake, the formidable Miss Tweed (a spoof on Agatha Christie's Miss Marple), leading the spirited troupe in singing, dancing and investigating murders. The opening number is an indication of the pace of things to come, as six guests arrive, one by one, are welcomed by the three servants, snoop around the house, express their sentiments at being invited for the weekend, circulate through their respective rooms (accomplishing complete changes from eccentric traveling clothes to elegant evening attire), and regroup, front and center, for a deftly staged final chorus.

HEIRESS APPARENT: "Then I'm the legal heir" exclaims an excited Hope (Laura Jackson of Lawrenceville) to Miss Tweed, a masterly detective (Cynthia Lake of Princeton). "Something's Afoot" a musical whodunit is playing at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre in Hopewell weekends through July 23.

Show Flows Smoothly. The Act I finale, comparably ambitious and energetic, features Miss Tweed collecting all the clues and joining with her cohorts — what's left of them at this point — in the ominous but lively "Suspicious." These talented troupers are not dancers, and once or twice they do embark on a routine that is a bit over their heads, but the rapid pace smooths the rough spots and the show rides smoothly along on its laughter and lyricism.

Ms. Lake, consistently providing a strong core to the production with voice, diction, acting and movement all polished and in fine tune, instigates two other highlights of the show: "Carry On," featuring the four women mustering up their courage with a rousing spear-carrying kickline, and "I Owe It All (to Agatha Christie and Arthur Conan Doyle)," where she joins the two romantic leads in a slick, second-act pas de trois, complete with boater hats.

Jack Friedel, playing the part of Colonel Gillweather, that redoubtable officer who has served in every campaign in every outpost of the British empire, is unquestionably the master comedian of the show. Spiffily attired in his bright red military uniform with gold epaulets, sash and a dazzling array of medals, Mr. Friedel and his impressive mustache bristle with a comic dignity that makes his pratfalls especially amusing. His body contortions and expressive face, always completely in character, provide many rich comic moments throughout the evening.

His duet, "The Man with the Ginger Mustache," a sultry romantic recognition and reminiscence number, with Sharon Alexander as the haughty Lady Grace Manley-Prowe — always ready to interject her awkward French phrases — is a skillful piece of work on both sides. Ms. Alexander is up to her usual solid, compelling level of acting and first-rate vocalizing.

More Good Performances. Ed Mahler plays a winning and distinguished Dr. Grayburn, and, though it would seem odd to compliment an actor by quoting Shakespeare's "nothing became his life like the leaving of it," Dr. Grayburn's highly protracted and dramatic death is indeed a comic tour de force in the first act.

Laura Jackson, newcomer to Off-Broadstreet in the ingenue role of Hope Langdon, displays a beautiful voice in several solos, duets and ensemble numbers, and presents with finesse, taste and sharp comic timing the quintessential dewy-eyed maiden.

Her romantic male counterpart, Don Amorosi, as Geoffrey the Oxford third oarsman, is less successful, despite his powerful and appealing singing. The British accent and the character do not sit comfortably on him, and his performance is a self-conscious, at times awkward, one.

The slithering, rapacious nephew Nigel Rancour, played by Robert Chibbaro, completes the guest list. As "the legal heir," he has an amusing song of romantic courtship, "I Know What I'm Looking For," in which the object of his affections is not, as might be expected, a lovely lady, but rather his uncle's will!

Laura Agin delivers a strong supporting performance as Lettie the maid, object of much male attention, and her colleagues, Clive the butler and Flint the lecherous, bulging-eyed chaffeur, round out the motley staff of Rancour Manor.

The musical accompaniment, led by co-music director Mark McGee on the piano with James Jarvie on percussion and David Hutching on keyboard, both supports the singers effectively and injects evocative background music to help establish the ominous and romantic tones of the play. Patricia Hibbert's appropriately bold, lavish and colorful costuming also contributes invaluably to the production.

The vast arsenal of special effects is not as finely tuned as it might be. They all do work, but a falling chandelier — No, you don't need to go see Phantom of the Opera when Mr. Thick has falling chandeliers right here in Hopewell — needs to fall precisely on cue whether the intended effect is horror or comedy!

Something's Afoot, written by James McDonald, David Vos, Robert Gerlach and Ed Linderman, will play at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre through July 23, with Friday and Saturday shows at 8 p.m. and Sunday curtain at 2:30. Dessert is served from one hour before the show. Phone 466-2766 for reservations.

Two Forster Novels On the Kresge Screen

Summer Cinema, in the air-conditioned Kresge Auditorium in Frick chemistry building, Washington Road, will show two movies produced by Ismail Merchant and James Ivory this weekend. A Room with a View and Maurice, both based on novels by E.M. Forster, will be shown Friday through Sunday, starting at 7:30.

A Room with a View, written in 1901, is the story of Lucy Honeychurch (Helen Bonham Carter), an unformed and largely stifled, upper middle-class girl who travels to Italy in 1907, falls in love and is eventually liberated from the mores and conventions of Victorian England. The characters include Maggie Smith as Lucy's spinsterish chaperone; Julian Sands, as George, who woos her with passion and enlightened feminism; and Daniel Day Lewis as Cecil, her insufferably snobbish suitor.

The evening's second film, Maurice, is the story of a middle-class young man who enters Cambridge and falls in love with the snobbish, intellectual and handsome Clive, with whom he has an intense but platonic relationship. When Clive abandons Maurice for a conventional marriage, the latter finds both physical and emotional fulfillment with Clive's gamekeeper Alec.

'The Glasnost Menagerie'

McCarter Theatre's Artistic Director Nagle Jackson will give a lecture Monday at 8 on his personal experiences during his recent trip to Russia.

Mr. Jackson went to the USSR last April to direct Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie at the Gorky Theatre in Leningrad. During his stay, he kept a journal from which he will share his thoughts, daily observations, inspirations and frustrations.

The lecture will last about an hour, and there will be a question and answer period.

Starting Tuesday and continuing through Thursday, June 30, two contemporary Japanese comedies, Tampopo and The Family Game will be shown. Tampopo is described as a Japanese "noodle western" and "a joyous wallow in the art of living to eat." Directed by Juzo Itami, the film is about a young widow who wants to become a great noodle chef, and the cowboy-hatted truck driver who rides in to help her accomplish her goal.

The Family Game is about a Japanese family of four and their concern for the academic performance of the youngest son. The parents abdicate authority to an enigmatic tutor who wreaks havoc on the boy's adolescent sensibilities with his strongarm tactics. The film is about the futility of education unrelated to wisdom, but, as in the first film, food plays a role, since the final scene is a family feast which turns into a grotesquely funny food riot.

Summer Cinema discount books are available from McCarter Theatre. Priced at $30, the books contain 10 coupons which may be used in any combination. Single admission is $4 and will be available one-half hour prior to the first film of each double feature program. For further information, call the McCarter Theatre box office at 683-8000.

Gurney Play to Open Princeton Rep Season

The comedy What I Did Last Summer, by A.R. Gurney Jr., will open the Princeton Rep Company's summer season on Thursday at 8 at the air-conditioned Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus.

The play offers a nostalgic look by a grown-up, Charlie Higgins, back to the summer vacation of the year 1945, when he was 14. The summer of '45 finds Charlie at odds with his mother and sister about life in general and with his Canadian friend, Ted, about a cute young lady named Bonnie, in particular. His father is away fighting the war in the Pacific, and Charlie has to deal with the difficulties of growning up without Dad around.

The summer of '45 is also when Charlie meets a mysterious and magical teacher who changes his life forever. The professional Actors' Equity production is directed by Dennis Delaney, who has directed at Montclair's Whole Theatre Company, the Perry Street Theatre in New York City and the Foundation Theatre in southern New Jersey.

The play features Esther Jenkins, John Prosky, Mary McLain, Ami McDermot, Jeanne Bucci and Robert Osborne. Ms. Jenkins has appeared in many Princeton Rep productions and has led its PlayLab playreading series. She has contributed to productions for the American Place Theatre, La Mama ETC, and Judson Poets' Theatre.

Mr. Prosky, who plays Charlie Higgins, has performed professionally at the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., Playwrights Horizon in New York City and the Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis. Ms. McLain, who appears as Charlie's mother, has performed the roles of Bunny Flingus in The House of Blue Leaves, Desdemona in Othello, and Sally in Talley's Folly.

Princeton Rep is making its summer home at Murray Theatre for the first time this year. In the past, the company has performed at the Triangle Broadmead Theatre, Forbes College Theatre, the Arts Council of Princeton, and the Mill Hill Playhouse in Trenton.

Performances of What I Did Last Summer are Thursday through Sunday through July 3. Curtain time is 8 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and 7 on Sunday. There will be an opening night reception after the performance this Thursday.

Admission Thursday and Sunday is $10, Friday and Saturday, $12. Subscriptions are available at a 20% savings, and group sales are discounted at 30%. Student and senior citizen discounts are available.

For reservations call 452-4950 or 921-3682.

First McCarter Summer A Jambalaya of Events

Like the Creole stew composed of rice and shrimp, oysters, crab, ham and chicken, mixed with spices and vegetables, McCarter's Jambalaya is planned as a spicy jumbled mixture for the theater's first full summer season.

The season includes two plays, The Miss Firecracker Contest and Smoke on the Mountain. The first is about the lengths to which one female entrant goes to win the Fourth of July beauty pageant and tal-

Tribute to "Challenger" Wins Award for Ballet

The Princeton Ballet has received the National Space Society's Space Pioneer Award for Artistic Director Dermot Burke's ballet, A Tribute. The award was conferred at the International Space Development Conference in Denver, Colo. Accepting the award on behalf of Princeton Ballet was Charles Divine, dance photographer and member of the Space Society, who also won recognition for his space photography.

A Tribute was premiered in the spring of 1987 and is a representation of the Challenger crew. Mr. Burke has dedicated his work to explorers occupying a special place in history whose efforts have generally led to the betterment of humanity. The work is a 12-minute ballet with music by Rachmaninoff and designs by Shirley Varughese.

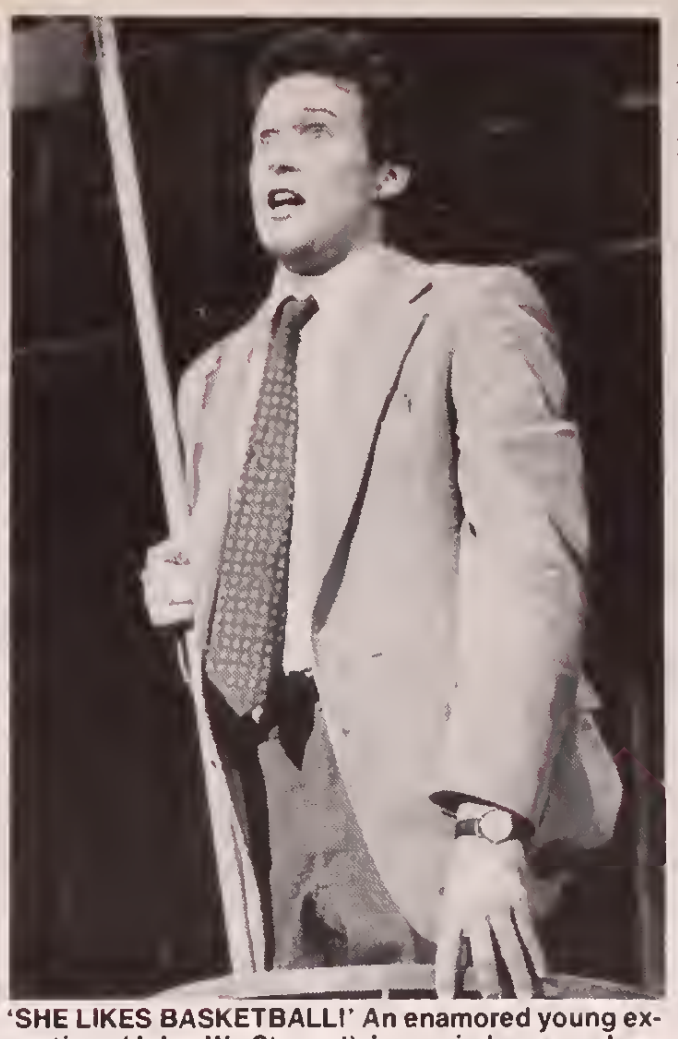
Year After Year, PJ&B 'Promises, Promises' And Year After Year, It Delivers in Style



'SHE LIKES BASKETBALL!' An enamored young executive, (John W. Stewart) is carried away, slam-dunking himself into a trash can in PJ&B's "Promises, Promises."

It always comes as a bit of a surprise how professional and slick the annual PJ&B production at McCarter Theatre is. After all, PJ&B, as originally conceived back in 1961 by Director Milton Lyon, is supposed to be an amateur show, produced and run by professionals.

But there was little, if anything, amateurish about last weekend's Promises, Promises at McCarter. Indeed, most of the lead performers — local talent, it's true — are not only veterans of past PJ&B musicals, but are probably on stage for more days during a year than their Equity Card-bearing counterparts.

Promises, Promises will never be my favorite Broadway musical, or even my favorite Neil Simon script — and I doubt whether it is many people's favorite anything. But it is the only Broadway musical scored by Burt Bacharach and Hal David, a collaboration perhaps most famous for "Raindrops Keep Fallin' on My Head," "What the World Needs Now Is Love," and "Close to You." And Simon's book is based on the Billy Wilder movie The Apartment, which starred Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine, so the show certainly has a distinguished pedigree.

The story, for those who don't know, concerns an ambitious young insurance executive, Chuck Baxter, who falls into loaning his apartment to his seniors for their illicit trysts in the hope of furthering his career. And of course one of these lecherous married bosses is leading on the very woman Baxter yearns for, Fran Kubelik.

"Wonderful Antics." John W. Stewart, who carried off PJ&B's Where's Charley? with such aplomb a few years ago, once again brings his considerable appeal to the lead role — as well as to the choreography — in this production. His Baxter is naive to the point of near stupidity, but oh so charming. While his voice is not quite the match for Mary Lee Marson's lovely tones as Fran, he makes up for it in his delightful asides to the audience and especially in his wonderful antics in the exuberant number "She Likes Basketball."

Just when I was beginning to find the song a little dull, Stewart stomped on a couple of soda cans and turned them into heel-taps for a fabulous tap-dancing routine that ended with him dunking himself — a great big happy basketball — in the janitor's trash barrel.

Mary Lee Marson's quite self-possessed Fran had her special moment too, albeit without the hilarity. Her rendition of the lovely, wistful song, "I'll Never Fall in Love Again," a number made famous by Dionne Warwick (and my favorite in the show), could have gone on twice as long and I doubt anyone in the audience would have squirmed.

I've come to look forward to Allan Salkin's appearances in PJ&B, for no matter what part he lands, he always makes it seem like it's the best role, and certainly the one with all the funniest lines. His wry Dr. Dreyfuss was no disappointment. "I'm a general practitioner," he snaps at his suicidal patient. "You want sympathy, go to a specialist."

Other standouts in the cast include Diana Crane as a splendidly haughty pickup in her owl coat, Phyllis Platt as the overthrown and outraged Miss Olson, Brent Monahan as Sheldrake, and George Sullivan, Ed Teti, Richard O. Swain, and Ed Stout as the quartet of corrupt husbands.

The sets by Bobby Berg were clever and impressive. I particularly liked the aluminum elevator doors and 1960's detailing of the office decor. Marie Miller's costumes ran the gamut from straightlaced junior executive to mini-skirts to ragged-fringed hippies and reflected the era well.

Promises, Promises ran for three hours. Although it felt long in spots, it didn't feel that long, which is to say that all in all, this production confirms once again that PJ&B is an event on the Princeton timetable worth looking forward to.

Benjamin Britten Made Entertaining and Accessible by June Opera Festival

Benjamin Britten takes a little getting used to. His operatic characters, from the almost-pathological Peter Grimes to the Shakespearean Oberon, attract little sympathy from the audience, and his music is unsettling, with few sweeping melodies or grand arias to grasp.

Perhaps these factors accounted for the somewhat smallish crowd on the opening night of June Opera Festival's final production: Benjamin Britten's A Midsummer Night's Dream. Those who stayed away with fears of 20th-century atonality, take heart — the artists and directors of June Opera have made this complex opera entertaining and accessible for even the most skittish of listeners.

June Opera chose in this production to concentrate on an amazing array of visual effects to draw the audience into the world of the supernatural. Costumes designed by Gregg Barnes and Kitty Leech added immeasurably to the atmosphere created by set designer Patricio Woodbridge and lighting designer Jane Reisman. As with the Festival's other operatic productions this year, the vocal cast displayed very few weak spots, with many instances of finely-tuned and crisp ensemble performance.

As in much of Britten's operatic work, youth plays a major factor in this interpretation of William Shakespeare's play. Oberon's fairies were played by boys from Trinity Church, Princeton. Four of the boys (William Goorgantas, Zachary Price, Geoffrey Hazelrig and Christopher Stengel) had substantial solo work as Queen Titania's head fairies, and as an ensemble, the boys produced a lovely tone, as would be expected from any children's chorus trained by John Bertalot. They were, unfortunately, hard to hear at times, especially when singing against the percussion instruments of the orchestra.

OBERON ORDERS FAIRY DUST from his henchman Puck (played by Gary Brownlee, reclining) in the June Opera Festival's production of Benjamin Britten's "A Midaummer Night's Dream." Oberon is sung by counter-tenor Rodney Hardesty.

Oberon and Puck. Oberon himself appeared as a creature of unearthly demeanor, dressed completely in black and sung by a counter-tenor (Rodney Hardesty). The counter-tenor voice is one not often heard in opera, and one never quite gets used to its timbre in this setting. Oberon's chief henchman, Puck, is a spoken role, performed by actor Gary Brownlee. This character combines a bit of the devil with a bit of Joel Grey, and the relationship between Oberon and Puck as performed by these fine actors adds to the spookiness of Shakespeare's bizarre tale.

For those who attend opera to see love, there's plenty of that as well. As the four lovers trying desperately to get themselves paired off correctly, Robert Swensen, Matthew Lau, Janet Parker, and Steffanie Pearce didn't miss a beat throughout the complex score. Some of the most moving and romantic music of the opera is sung by Mr. Swensen and Ms. Parker as their characters try to sort out their feelings.

What helps to bridge the gap between stage and audience in this opera is the cast of "rustics" — six townspeople who provide comic relief in their attempts to produce a serious play. Most prominent among the rustics is Bottom, sung by Nicholas Soloman, whose lively animation adds to the humor of these characters.

As an ensemble, the rustics work together as though they've known each other all their lives. Bottom and his compatriots, played by Bruce Kramer, Robert O'Neil, James Moellenhoff, Andrew Zimmerman, and Gregory Powell, bring a unique sense of comedy to each of their roles and provide the audience with a more traditional operatic handle to grasp when Britten's music becomes hard to absorb.

Credit for keeping the link between the stage and pit intact belongs to conductor Michael Pratt, whose technical mastery of a difficult and complicated score held the opera together and connected the instrumentalists and singers. Under Mr. Pratt's guidance, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra members provided a flawless backdrop to the singers, despite crowded conditions.

A Midsummer Night's Dream will be presented Saturday and again Tuesday at the Kirby Arts Center, The Lawrenceville School, at 8 p.m. Information about tickets for this and other June Opera productions can be obtained by calling 737-7711.

Steel Band Will Play In Benefit for Center

The 20th Century Steel Orchestra of St. Vincent, West Indies, will perform Saturday in a benefit event for the proposed St. Vincent Cultural Center. The event will include several other activities and will take place from 1 to 9 at 1131 County Route 601 (The Great Road), Blawenburg.

The seven-man steel drum band plays calypso, reggae, pop and classical. It was formed in Kingstown, St. Vincent, in 1973 with approximately 45 members and won honors in festivals throughout the Caribbean area, including five first place awards and honors in St. Vincent's "Panorama" steel band competition between 1980 and 1982.

From 1982 to 1986 the band was employed by the Chandris Cruise Lines, and for the past two years its members have lived in the United States, working at different jobs but getting together regularly to make music. Mike Jones, a D.J., who has officiated at a previous benefit for St. Vincent Cultural Center, will be on hand to keep the audience moving to reggae dancing, Calypso lines and limbo contests.

Other entertainment will include jugglers and clowns, crafts people and an island costume contest. Donations are being sought from area business establishments for a raffle that will benefit the underprivileged children of St. Vincent's Cultural Center. Tropical food and beverages will be available.

The rain date is Saturday, July 2. For more information write or call the St. Vincent Cultural Center, PO Box 203, Princeton 08542, or call 466-4521.

Harvard Resident Quartet Here for Outdoor Concert

The New World String Quartet will open the Princeton University Summer Chamber Concert Series this season on Thursday, June 30, at 8. The quartet will perform in the main courtyard of the Princeton University Graduate College.

Harvard University's Quartet-in-Residence since 1984, the New World String Quartet is the first resident ensemble in Harvard's 350 year history. Only two years after their formation in 1977, the quartet won the Naumburg Chamber Music Award in 1979.

The program for the June 30 performance will begin with Mozart's Quartet in B-flat Major, K. 458. This piece, also known as The Hunt, will be followed by the Quartet in C Major, Op. 59, No. 3 by Beethoven. After intermission, the group will perform Bartok's Quartet No. 4.

Admission is free and audience members are encouraged to bring blankets or lawn chairs to sit on. There is no seating provided.

Current policy at Princeton University prohibits picnicking and alcohol on University grounds. Parking for the concert is located on Springdale Road, and in Lot 19, just off of Springdale Road at the Graduate College.

In case of rain the concerts are moved indoors to Richardson Auditorium. Call 452-5977 for instructions if you are unsure about the weather.

Free Concerts Scheduled At the Choir College

Westminster Choir College will sponsor several concerts June 26 through 30. Performances will be held in air-conditioned Bristol Chapel on the Westminster campus and are open to the public at no charge.

Deborah Ford, soprano, and Thomas Purviance, pianist, will give a recital Sunday at 8:30 p.m. They will perform works by Mozart, Schubert, Strauss, Dvorak, and Verdi.

Monday at 7, Melissa Shaddy, Westminster senior and voice performance major, will give her senior voice recital, featuring works by Purcell, Mozart, Schubert, Debussy, Puccini and Rodrigo. At 8:30 p.m., a Hymn Sing will be led by Clifford Hill, organist and choir director at Christ Church in New Brunswick.

Tuesday at 8, Frauke Haasemann, group vocal techniques specialist at Westminster, will lead a reading of the Kyrie and Gloria from Bach's Mass in B Minor. Scores will be available to all attending. Wednesday, June 29, at 7, mezzo-soprano Lois Laverty, a member of the Westminster voice faculty, will perform "Songs of Hugo Wolf." At 8:30, Peter Lauffer, a member of the Westminster conservatory faculty, will present a solo piano recital.

Thursday, June 30, at 7, soprano Wendy Glaubitz and pianist Marvin Keenze will perform. Mr. Keenze is a member of the Westminster voice faculty. At 8:30 p.m. Westminster voice faculty members and vocal camp voice teachers Judith Nicosia Civitano, soprano; Laura Brooks Rice, mezzo-soprano; Thomas Faracco, tenor; and Elem Eley, baritone, will present a recital.

For information call 921-2663.

NEW WORLD STRING QUARTET will perform works by Mozart, Beethoven and Bartok Thursday, June 30, as the first concert in the Summer Chamber Series. The concert will begin at 8 in the Graduate College courtyard, weather permitting; otherwise it will be in Richardson Auditorium. Call 452-5977 on the day of the concert if in doubt as to the location.

Elgar Choral Work Set For Richardson Concert

The second weekend of the 1988 Waterloo Festival at Princeton University will feature a performance of Edward Elgar's The Dream of Gerontius, with Principal Conductor Gerard Schwarz leading the Waterloo Festival Orchestra, mezzo-soprano Mimi Lerner, tenor Vinson Cole, baritone Jake Gardner, and the chorus of M.U.S.I.C., Garyth Nair, conductor. The concert will take place Monday at 8:30 at Richardson Auditorium.

Rarely performed under professional auspices in the United States, The Dream of Gerontius was written in 1900. It is considered the first major work in the great English choral music tradition since the Messiah, and established Elgar as the first internationally recognized English composer since Handel. Based on the famous poem by Cardinal Newmao, the most eloquent spokesman for 19th-century Catholicism, this epic composition combines the almost operatic theatricality of the Verdi Requiem with the intense mysticism of Wagner's Parsifal.

The weekend will open Friday at 8:30 with a chamber music concert at Richardson Auditorium, performed by faculty artists of the Waterloo School of Music. Featuring music of Bach and five 20th-century composers, the program reflects the Waterloo Festival's policy of presenting a wide variety of music by 20th-century composers.

The concert opens with two contrapuncti from Bach's Art of the Fugue as transcribed for brass quintet, followed by Samuel Barber's Sonata for Cello and Piano, from the composer's early romantic period. Two works by French composers will be performed: the Trio for Flute, Viola and Cello of Albert Roussel and the Suite dans le Gout espagnol for oboe, bassoon, trumpet and harpsichord, by Roussel's pupil, the music critic Alexis Roland-Manuel.

The program also features a performance by Roland Kohloff, principal timpanist of the New York Philharmonic, of a work written especially for him by contemporary American composer Kenneth LaFave, who is also a music critic. Three Pieces for Unaccompanied Timpani, written in 1986-87, will be heard in its entirety for the first time. The concert will conclude with Dohnanyi's lush, lyrical Serenade for String Trio, Op. 10.

Three series of master classes, open to the public at no charge, will continue at Richardson Auditorium. On Friday, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., cellist Nathaniel Rosen will present "The Art of Cello Playing;" Monday, Prof. Raphael Bronstein and Ariana Bronne will continue with "The Art of Violin Playing" from 11 to 1; and from 4 to 6 p.m., Stuart Canin will conclude his series on "Technique and Rehearsal of String Quartets."

Tickets for the June 24 chamber music program are $10; for the June 27 orchestra concert, they are $22.50. They may be charged by calling TicketMaster at (201) 507-8900. They may also be purchased at the door. For additional information, call 452-5000.

"SUMMER'S LAST BOUQUET," a still life by Lucy Graves-McVicker, will be among featured works in The Watercolorists at Mercer Medical Center, Trenton, opening June 16.

ART

Summer Art Workshops For Younger Children

A six-week art workshop for children in grades one to five will be offered by Susan Kriegman at the Arts Council of Princeton.

One day a week will be devoted to outdoor drawing projects. Other classes will include designing tee shirts, making animated 'flip' books, making architects' floor plans, illustrating songs, creating picture alphabets, and designing puzzles.

Class size is limited to eight. Classes for grades one through three will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 to 5:30. Classes for grades four to six will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4 to 5:30. To register, call Ms. Kriegman at 275-6553.

Exhibits

Princeton Gallery of Fine Art will present its summer exhibition, "Works in Series," from July 7 through September 18. It will include work by many artists, including Frank Stella, David Hockney, Milton Avery, Thomas George, Naomi Savage and Alfred Jenson. The exhibition will feature two or more works of art that share common elements per artist.

The works in series range from three Frank Stella mixed-media prints, from his "Polar Co-ordinate" series of 1980, to three pastels of the gardens at Giverny by Thomas George. Also included are two David Hockney lithographs of his favorite model, Celia Birtwell; a group of watercolors on rice paper from the 1950s by Milton Avery; and a large composite work of 12 photo-drawings based on the same subject by Naomi Savage.

The charcoal drawings of Eugenia Maria Argires and the sculptures of Ralph Caparulo will be featured at Educational Testing Service's Conant Hall from July 1 to August 14.

Ms. Argires will display a series of charcoal drawing as a tribute to her late infant daughter, a victim of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. The drawings attempt to deal with the emotions and grief associated with that loss.

Mr. Caparulo's wall-mounted sculptures combine dyed leather, natural woods and twine to create pieces that Frederick Osbourne, dean and director of the Pennsylvania Academy of The Fine Arts, describes as "...mysterious, mythological and humorous."

The public is invited to a reception for the artists on Sunday, July 10, from 3 to 5 p.m. There is no admission charge and refreshments will be served.

A series of previously unpublished photographs of John Lennon and Yoko Ono, taken by photographer Allan Tannenbaum in November, 1980, is featured in an exhibition of images of musicians presented by The Williams Collection.

The show will preview at Toombs Development Company, Princeton Forrestal Village, Wednesday, June 22, from 10 to 9 and continue at the Williams Collection Gallery, 15 Seminary Avenue, Hopewell, from Friday through July 17. The photographs of "John and Yoko: November 1980" will be offered for sale in a limited edition.

Bolsters

ed in the family as one of the most gifted of the Bolster athletes.

Michael is an architect with Robert A.M. Stern in New York City, designer of expensive homes and the architect for the new Jewish center to be built at Princeton University. Michael studied architecture in a five-year program at Tulane University, spending his fourth year in Nottingham, England. He spent two years in the Peace Corps in North Yemen and was selected as one of the six outstanding Peace Corps volunteers for 1983.

In the Boston Area. Carrie has just been named head of the French Department at Middlesex School outside Boston. She graduated from Scripps College, majoring in history, but took her junior year in France, becoming fluent in French. She went on to earn a master's degree at the Universily of Oregon in a year and a half, at the same time running her own industrial and commercial painting company, and teaching part time.

Halcyon Painting, whose motto was "We Come, We See, We Paint," undertook major projects such as bridges, schools, hospitals and a big domed courthouse. Carrie has been at Middlesex since the fall of 1983, teaching all levels of French from beginner to advanced placement, coaching hockey and lacrosse, and acting as an adviser.

Mary also went to Scripps, where she majored in English and wrote her senior thesis on John McPhee. Like John, who co-founded an "underground" newspaper at Denison, she has aspirations as a writer, but like Tom and Charley she has been traveling around the world. A standout lacrosse player who continued to play club lacrosse after graduation, she went to Australia, initially to play lacrosse, as did Tom, and has since been traveling in Thailand, and Japan.

Mary and Tom both arrived home unannounced Sunday morning to surprise Richard on his birthday and to be present for his graduation. "I figured I could see everyone (in my family) all at once without having to go around the country," Mary said, after Richard — and his parents — recovered from the shock of seeing her again after two years. Mary wrote some movie reviews for an Australian newspaper while she was gone and now plans on more writing, the details of which she declined to reveal.

Another Traveler. After graduating from St. Lawrence University, Tom played professional indoor soccer as a Milwaukee Wave. He injured his knee badly in his first season, made a comeback for a second year, but dropped out the third. He went to Australia, like Mary, to play lacrosse, but re-injured the knee in his first game and became a coach instead. He has alternated travel around Australia and New Zealand with a variety of jobs and is back home to think about his next move.

Martha Bolster took an entirely different tack by going to Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., where she majored in special education. Like several of her siblings, she began cooking as a child, enjoyed it and ultimately graduated from Western Culinary Institute in Portland, Oregon. She is currently a pastry chef in Nashville.

Libby was an 11-letter athlete at St. Lawrence University, and would have equalled Jim's record if she had not spent part of her junior year in England. Captain of the swim team, she was named most valuable player as a swimmer and the outstanding female athlete her senior year. All three teams in which she participated competed in the nationals, and the swimming team won All-American.

Libby worked as a temporary in New York City, but prefers country life and lives in Burlington, Vt., trying her hand as a carpenter.

Excellent School System. Tink Bolster credits the Princeton school system for helping develop the interests and achievements of her children. "The whole school system is excellent," she remarks emphatically. "The teachers were devoted people who really cared about kids." She cites those who encouraged the flair for writing which many of the Bolster children share, and those who laid the foundation for later fluency in a foreign language.

Television did not come to the Bolster household until after the 12th child — around 1968. Reading, talking, teasing, acting out real and imaginary scenes with the huge cast available, and a host of backyard and basement games took its place. There was a cardinal rule that homework be finished before going out to play.

Both Bolster parents took an active role in school activities and organizations. Mr. Bolster was president of the Johnson Park School PTO, served on the PTO Council at the high school and was on the board of the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation for a dozen or so years.

Mrs. Bolster was involved for several years in the birthday book program at Johnson Park School in which every child was encouraged to donate a book to the school library on his or her birthday. She was also a PTO officer during the middle school years and tried to attend "at least one game per kid per season," as she puts it — often accompanied by a retinue of small children in strollers and perhaps a baby carriage.

Unflappable Parents. George Petrillo, who headed the guidance department and was principal while several Bolsters were passing through the high school, says he can't believe the Bolster era is ending. "They were a wonderful family, and a wonderful asset to the school," Mr. Petrillo says.

He notes that, although the family provoked curiosity about how you feed that many mouths, and there were jokes about how, without the Bolsters, the school board could let 15 teachers go, he felt there was "tremendous strength" in the family and great support for the school.

He uses the word "unflappable" as the best way to characterize Mr. and Mrs. Bolster. "I know if I had 14 kids I'd be more nervous," Mr. Petrillo says, adding that the Bolster kids are ones he would claim "as my own — they are that nice."

Florence Burke says she has vivid memories of the Bolster station wagon pulling up to the high school entrance full of kids, all doors flying open, kids tumbling out, doors closing, car departing, still full of kids. "They were always fun kids," Miss Burke says, "and always most respectful. They had many interests which were encouraged by the parents, particularly in sports, and they developed others while they were here."

Jane Jacobs, an English teacher at PHS now retired, remembers how other kids in school enjoyed talking and bragging about knowing this family with all the children. "The ones I had in class had a freshness and naturalness that helped things along. They were delightfully genuine and natural and weren't afraid to ask questions. That got things going." She also remembers the Bolsters as being "very sharp, and very sensitive to other kids."

Mr. and Mrs. Bolster will celebrate their 36th wedding anniversary in mid-July. The first 18 years or so were spent in adding to their family, the other half in seeing the nest gradually empty out as one by one the children left home for college and the world outside Princeton. This fall the house on Parkside Drive will be without children, except for vacations and holidays, for the first time since the Bolsters built it in 1957.

And the Princeton schools, similarly, will be without a Bolster for the first time in nearly 30 years. It is the end of an era, and congratulations are in order all around.

IT'S NEW To Us

Authentic Hungarian Food Specialty of Old Budapest

"I want to show people that there is much more to Hungarian food than stuffed cabbage and chicken paprikash," says George Palfalvi, chef and co-owner of Old Budapest, the new Hungarian restaurant in the Montgomery Shopping Center.

"I hope to educate people," he continues. "The first time I made sour pickle soup, for example, people had never had it. Now they love it, and call up and ask when we're having it. Most of the dishes are my own recipes I've developed or else recipes from long ago from my grandmother. I grew up in the restaurant business," he adds. "My family still has one in Budapest."

A native of Hungary, Mr. Palfalvi was head chef on the famous Orient Express before coming to the United States eight years ago. Since his arrival here, he has worked as a chef, taught cooking classes and written a newpaper cooking column.

A year ago he met Joyce Bastedo, who was a dietary supervisor, and, though neither of them had ever owned a restaurant, they decided to merge their talents and open Old Budapest.

"I enjoy helping George, and I'm learning a lot," says Ms. Bastedo. "There's a great deal to running a restaurant. The work is hard, but I don't mind. The people have been very nice, and they really seem to enjoy the food. They compliment Goerge all the time. We already have a lot of repeat customers, and many times they don't even look at the menu. They just say 'George, fix me something.' They have great confidence in him.

"Also," she continues, "we really emphasize freshness here. There are no additives or preservatives. Everything is made from scratch. All the salads are made to order. The lettuce is not pre-cut. You can come here for a fresh, healthy meal."

Relaxed Atmosphere. "In addition, we try to have a very relaxed atmosphere. It's a real family restaurant. People like to linger. Also, Hungarians who might be here on vacation get a kick out of speaking Hungarian to George. Here, people can look in and talk to the chef while he's cooking. People feel very comfortable. Our three waitresses have been very important in welcoming people, too. They're very cheerful and friendly and popular with the customers."

Ms. Bastedo notes that diners have come from all over — including Rochester, N.Y., Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey, the shore area and Trenton, as well as the immediate area.

Those who come have commented on the appealing ambience and attractive decor of the restaurant, with its blue walls and white tablecloths. It is not every restaurant that offers cloth tablecloths these days, and this, too, has struck a responsive chord with customers.

"We also received a very favorable critique in the Trenton Times," notes Ms. Bastedo, "and this has encouraged people to give as a try."

Special Soups. Lunch and dinner are served Tuesday through Sunday, and such dishes as Beef Burgundy, Bakony Pork, Budapest Platter, and Wiener Schnitzel are available, as well as the typical chicken paprikash and goulash. Dinner entrees are served with a tossed salad and noodles, dumplings or rice. Luncheon entrees also include a cup of soup and dessert. Ham and cheese, roast beef, tuna, chicken or shrimp salad sandwiches are also on hand for lunch.

A soup of the day, such as cold cherry, cabbage or pickle, is available, along with chicken noodle or liver dumpling which are offered every day. Mr. Palfalvi notes that Hungarian soup is not the creamy, thick variety, but more typically a thin liquid, like bouillon.

Desserts are another specialty of Old Budapest, and they include such tempting choices as cherry apple strudel, rum puff cakes, Black Forest cake, fruit bread pudding and fruit rice pudding.

"The way our food is served is different," adds Ms. Bastedo. "The presentation of the food is very important. The majority of our meals are served on wooden platters. This was how food was served in Hungary. We make a special effort to have it look attractive and interesting," She adds that people can bring their own wine, and the staff will provide ice buckets and corkscrews.

Ms. Bastedo and Mr. Palfalvi have tried to keep prices moderate at Old Budapest. "We want to make some money, of course," she says, "but we don't want people to have to leave their wallets to have a meal here. What I feel most strongly about is that George can have his own restaurant and be able to serve the kind of food he wants to and that we, and the customers, will find happiness, quiet and contentment here."

Adds Mr. Palfalvi, "I hope we're successful, but it's not the money. For me, it's much more the satisfaction of people enjoying the meal and being happy here. You really have to love the kitchen and really love to experiment with food to go into the restaurant business," he smiles. "For me, it's my life."

Prices at the restaurant include $3.75 for a ham and cheese sandwich, $5.25 to $5.60 for a luncheon entree and $9.25 to $11.95 for a dinner entree. Soup starts at 95 cents and desserts at $2.50.

Old Budapest is open Tuesday to Thursday 11:30 to 10, Friday and Saturday until 11 and Sunday noon to 10. Reservations are suggested for Friday and Saturday. The phone number is 924-7095.

THE REAL THING: "Many people, including those of Hungarian ancestry, do not know much more about Hungarian food beyond three or four items. We are trying to introduce more of the real Hungarian dishes — authentic Hungarian food, with a lot of choices," explain Joyce Bastedo and George Palfalvi, owners of Old Budapest. The Hungarian restaurant in the Montgomery Shopping Center opened last December.

Traditions of France Highlight New Gift Shop

"Our main idea is to show the traditions of France. Some of the popular arts of the country. We have lots of different kinds of things, and we like to find the unusual, something that is different," says Jean-Marie Scherer, owner with his wife Michele of Presents et Traditions de France (Gifts and Traditions of France).

"In fact," he continues, "we have many things that are unique, that you will not find anywhere else. Quality is important, and we deal with the best workshops and artists in France."

The gift shop, which is located at 63 Palmer Square West, opened in April, and the Scherers are very pleased both to be in Princeton and on Palmer Square. "We like Princeton," reports M. Scherer. "It's a good location, and it is near New York, too. We think it's the right place for what we want to do. I don't think there is another shop like ours in the area."

Formerly in marketing in Paris, M. Scherer decided to make a change, and the idea of having his own business appealed to him. The couple had traveled in the United States, including New York, Boston, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and planned to open a gift shop featuring French items. Before coming here, they "tried out" the store for two years in St. Martin in the Caribbean.

"The shop in St. Martin really was a treat," recalls M. Scherer. "We wanted to see if it would be popular, and we found we were successful. There were also a lot of American tourists there."

Friendly Customers. Since opening here, they have been pleased with the interest customers have shown. "They seem to like everything," reports Mme. Scherer, who formerly worked in public relations in Paris. "They really take time to look at each item. I like the customers and enjoy introducing them to these products of France. I enjoy meeting them, and they have been very friendly."

Customers cannot help but be fascinated by the wonderful selection. Everything from soap, scarves, sculpture and stoneware to baby rattles, bird call whistles, blackboards and brass items, as well as Limoges enamel boxes, handpainted decorative faience eggs, glass paste lamps and vases, perfume from Provence and a variety of children's games, puzzles, models and toys is on display.

"For me, I especially enjoy discussing the work with the artists in their workshops," says M. Scherer. "I like to hear about their work, and, of course, to see it. We have some very special things. For example, a unique sculpture in terra cotta, illustrating an old Easter tradition, 'The Egg Ceremony' from the South of France.

"We also have an accurate reproduction of 'The Phenakistoscope'," he continues. "Invented by Joseph Plateau in 1833, it is the ancestor of the cinema."

Sculpture/Blackboards. The shop also carries an assortment of unusual sculptures which can function as blackboards. Adorned with carvings of rabbits, ducks and chickens, they range from $290 to $390, and they can also be personalized by the artist.

Three-dimensional depictions of the famous ExVoto (votive) paintings are also available. According to tradition, "Sailors who survived a tempest at sea thanked the heavens by painting these naval scenes which they dedicated to God. Today, many of these paintings can be seen in churches in Brittany."

FLAVOR OF FRANCE: Francophiles will delight in the new Palmer Square gift shop, Presents et Traditions de France. Filled with a wide variety of hand-done items, including many reproductions of antiques, the charming shop offers the work of some of the best artists and craftspeople of France.

M. and Mme. Scherer add that if customers bring in a favorite postcard or picture of a nautical scene, the artist will render a customized interpretation for them.

The shop also specializes in a series of miniature Gault buildings. Entirely hand-made, these ceramic structures are signed by artist Jean-Pierre Gault and represent the architecture of Provence. They are available from $60 and up.

Bird Whistles. One of M. Scherer's favorite items is a collection of bird call whistles. "Parlez aux Oiseaux" contains a set of wooden whistles, reproducing calls of nine different birds and is $98. A set of six will be available later in the summer, as will single whistles.

Customers have also been intrigued with the Limoges enamel pill boxes which are reproductions of antique boxes from the time of Louis XIV. Used to store the then-fashionable fake beauty spots of black silk, the boxes include designs showing fragments of the famous tapestry from Bayeux, Normandy.

Presents et Traditions de France also carries a large selection of ceramic items, including a display of Moustiers, Quimper and Longwy faience. Many of the handpainted designs reproduce old Breton country motifs. Moustiers faience can be inscribed and personalized at the customer's request.

There is also stoneware from Alsace, Normandy and Provence and beautiful handpainted stone sundials, also from Provence.

Unusual Dishes. You will find a special compartmentalized butter dish for $19 which contains a space for the butter on top and another for ice in the bottom. Similarly, a dish for strawberries and cream has a special place to hold the cream. Both are very attractive additions to your table this summer.

The "Wagging Pot" is a reproduction of an 18th-century drinking mug. Handmade and handpainted in Moustiers faience, it is part of the collection of the Musee des Arts Decoratifs of Paris. "The trick is to drink from it without spilling a drop," smiles M. Scherer.

A selection of cotton scarves and handmade silk ties, as well as colorful tote bags and fashionable small bags is also available. Soap and perfume from Provence and lavender sachets are other popular items. As long as the supply lasts, visitors to the shop will receive a welcoming gift of a sachet.

The shop also carries a variety of special wall decorations, including "Assignat," framed French currency from the time of the Revolution and reproductions of antique drawings of French historical scenes, such as "Bataille des Pyramides."

Children are certainly not forgotten at Presents et Traditions de France, and there is a super selection of toys for tots. Special baby rattles contain seven small stones which, according to legend, represent the Seven Deadly Sins. By playing with the rattle, so the story goes, the baby will be protected from evil. A variety of colorful games, puzzles and models is also on hand, and directions for paper models of castles and chateaux are in French and English.

Customers will also appreciate the notes M. and Mme. Scherer have included with much of the merchandise. Helpful explanations accompany many of the items.

M. Scherer adds that in time he hopes to put together a catalogue and develop a mail order business. For now, however, customers will be very pleased to browse or buy in this appealing new shop where they can truly enjoy a touch of France.

Presents et Traditions de France is open Monday through Saturday 9 to 6, Thursday and Friday until 8:30 and Sunday 1 to 6.

Design Forum

Eileen B. Saums, Associate A.S.I.D., Interior Designer, speaks on Using Tables For Decorating.

Tables can give you a lot of help in decorating beside performing their practical function. Be sure you consider their decorating use.

For example, one effective way to decorate a bare wall space is to use a console table or wall table there which can hold a lamp or perhaps books, etc., not only dressing up that area of your room — but also, the table can be a thing of beauty in itself.

Another way to enable tables to add decorating touches is to consider new ways of using end tables. Your sofa needs end tables, but you might want to think of buying nice new ones that don't match. This is one way to give variety and individuality to your living room. Or, buy matching tables and use them singly in different areas. Every table should be picked and used with care.

Tables can really do so much for your decor. And today, it's easier to decorate with tables in each area since so many sizes and shapes are available — everything from square nests of tables, to long rectangular tables, to hexagonal ones — and the important thing is to think of tables not just as a piece of furniture to hold something, but as objects that themselves make your home even prettier. For a wonderful table selection, stop in.

We are having a SALE on our existing furniture and accessories. Stop in while there is still a nice selection.

Surprisingly, the custom of collecting baseball cards goes back more than 100 years ... The first baseball cards were made in the early 1880s and were put in cigarette packs ... Baseball cards came with chewing gum for the first time in the 1930s ... The most valuable baseball card of all-time is the 1909 card of Hall of Famer Honus Wagner ... Two Key Series Ahead For Princeton Post 76

One third of the way into its 27-game schedule, the Princeton Post 76 team is in place to achieve coach Larry Bender's goal of capturing one of the playoff spots in the Mercer Country American Legion League.

Princeton and Ewing are tied at 4-5, trailing five other clubs in the 10-team league. Not exactly the position Bender had in mind at this juncture, but still a legitimate contender. Ahead for Post 76 are key series with the two league leaders.

On Friday, Post 76 will be at 8-1 Bordentown, which began the week in first place after its first loss of the season Sunday to Hightstown. Princeton will host Bordentown on Saturday at 1 at Mercer County Park. On Monday, Princeton will oppose second-place Hamilton (8-1) at 5:45 at Mercer County Community College and then will entertain Post 31 on Tuesday in another 5:45 game. Princeton must hold its own in these series to remain in solid contention for a playoff berth.

Before that, however, Bender's club will get a breather — if there is such a thing in the league. It will oppose cellar-dwelling Trenton (1-8) this Wednesday at Trenton's Wetzel Field and was scheduled to play Trenton also the previous day.

Losing Streak Ends. For a moment last week, it appeared that Post 76 was on the fast lane to self-destruction. An extra-inning, 7-6 loss to Lawrence in which Princeton held the lead five times only to lose it every time, followed by a 4-2, 4-hit loss to Hopewell made three losses in a row for the team and five setbacks in seven starts.

A 6-3 victory over Ewing Friday halted the skid and on Saturday, in its third 90-degree game in as many days, Princeton erupted for half as many runs as it had scored in all eight of its previous games, when it routed Mitchell-Davis, 17-4. The long-awaited display of power (18 hits) and a solid, one-hit, 5⅓-inning relief pitching stint by 14-year-old Peter Prodanov were, unquestionably, a bracing, thanks-we-needed-that tonic to the entire team.

Rumer Is Rocked. Post 76 got off to a rocky start against ninth-place M-D. The home team shocked Post 76 mound ace Tim Rumer for all four of its runs in the first inning, combining three hits and a pair of walks. Rumer, looking for his second win, gave way in the second to Prodanov.

Princeton went ahead, 5-4, with a four-run outburst in the fourth and turned the game into a rout with its biggest inning of the season in the fifth, when it plated ten runs. Third baseman Andy Petrone led the 18-hit attack with three hits, including a pair of doubles, four RBIs and four runs scored in his four at bats.

Prodanov aided his own cause immeasurably with three hits, two RBIs and three runs scored for the greatest day in his short legion career, which promises to be a brilliant one. First baseman Jim Brienza, catcher Greg Papciak, outfielder A.J. Pietrinferno and Rumer each banged out a pair of hits, and veteran Dan Sexton added a triple.

Mark Lee pitched the final 2⅓ innings, allowing only one hit. Prodanov fanned six in nailing down his first win of the season.

Brienza-Sgro Ejected. Friday's first meeting between Ewing Post 314 and Princeton was packed with drama in the third inning — some good, some bad.

It began with Brienza exchanging words and profanity, plate umpire Virgil Holender would later testify, with John Sgro, the Ewing catcher. Brienza singled and later advanced to second on Tim Middleton's out. When Rumer then connected for a home run, Brienza rounded third and headed for home. As he crossed the plate, the umpire reported that he saw Sgro stick out his leg and arm to knock Brienza down. Brienza tackled Sgro, and the two began to exchange punches. Both benches emptied and some spectators raced onto the field during the brief scuffle. Both Sgro and Brienza were ejected from the game.

At a meeting Sunday chaired by league commissioner Warren C. Lewis, Brienza and Sgro were each given maximum three-day suspensions, effective immediately. Pointing out that this was the fifth incident of fighting this season in the league, Lewis stated, "There's just too much going on. It's going to have to stop. League chairman John L. Shanders warned that if Brienza or Sgro were involved in a second infraction, "they'll be suspended for the rest of the season."

Both Bender and Ewing manager Fred Walters, who attended the hearing, objected to the penalty, which they felt was excessive.

Back in the game, Walters maintained that the fight had benefited Princeton more than Ewing. "It got them up, and we were down," he said.

Post 76 pitcher Scott Lord had a lot to do with Ewing being down. He scattered seven hits (three by rightfielder Mark Michel, who hit a solo homer in the sixth and also tripled), and held Ewing scoreless through the first five innings. He went the distance for his first win.

Post 76 added single runs in the third and sixth innings and two more in the seventh to make it a 6-3 final score. Papciak had two of Post 76's seven hits.

Zentmayer in Control. The previous day, Hopewell's Carl Zentmayer had Princeton's number.

The pitcher/player, who transferred last year from Hopewell to Hun, limited Princeton to four hits and two runs in posting a 4-2 victory. The only extra base blow for the losers was Brienza's RBI double.

At the plate, Zentmayer was 2-for-2, as Hopewell rapped 11 hits off losing pitcher Kevin Durling, who went six innings and was touched for all four Hopewell runs.

Post 76 had begun the week with one of those games — with Lawrence Post 414 — that leaves managers talking to themselves. Rumer, the Duke University sophomore, ripped the ball for a double and four singles and drove in a pair of runs. Petrone had two hits and scored twice. Five times Princeton had the lead, and five times it couldn't hold it.

With the game tied at 3, Rumer gave Post 76 a 4-3 lead in the seventh when he singled home Sexton. Lawrence tied it, sending the game into extra innings.

In the eighth, Sexton singled home Petrone, who had singled, to give Post 76 a 5-4 lead. Lawrence tied it. In the ninth, Rumer drilled a leadoff double and scored on two wild pitches: Princeton 6, Lawrence 5.

Prodanov, the third of four Princeton pitchers, started the ninth by walking Bryan Clarke and Jerry Wargo. Bender was enraged by the calls of plate umpire Vince McKelvey, calling it the worst display of umpiring he had ever seen. Scott Cranstoun then doubled home Clarke with the tying run.

Prodanov, shaken, walked Mike Kim to load the bases. The winning run scored when Prodanov uncorked a wild pitch that got by catcher Greg Schwartz, and Wargo was safe on a play at the plate.

Ficarro's Loses Lead In Women's Softball

Steve Ficarro's, the Princeton-based women's softball team, was up and down last week in the National League Division of the Mercer County Women's League.

First the team was up. It began the week with an 8-2 triumph over arch rival Three Seasons to retain its hold on first place with a 13-2 record. Debbie Smyth and Cheryl Silva each banged out three hits and Grace Durland and Dee Discavage contributed two each, as Clare Baxter got the win.

Ahead lay Thursday's game with Dot's Girls, a team that had lost 14-0 to Ficarro's in their first meeting and which had not defeated Ficarro's in the past few years. Dot's Girls won, 2-0.

"I can't explain why we were so flat," said Ficarro's veteran manager Bob Smyth afterwards. "We came out and must have made a half dozen errors."

Errors were indeed a factor, and so was the shutout pitching of Dot's pitcher Michele Guear, who held the hard-hitting Ficarro's club to a season-low five hits. Baxter, one of the premier pitchers in the league, was just as effective in blanking Dot's, as the game wound down to its climactic ending.

After six scoreless innings, Dot's Girls led off the seventh with Lorna Bonorand reaching second on a throwing error to first by Ficarro shortstop Janet Comerford. After a fly out, Sue Muller lined a single to left. Doreen Ragazzo fielded the ball and attempted to nail Bonorand at third, but her throw sailed past third baseman Dee Vertucci, allowing Bonorand to come home with the winning run.

The victors added an insurance run on Fircarro's third error of the inning. Muller scored from second when Comerford threw wildly to first base, after fielding a grounder by Gail Thompson.

Ficarro's put runners on first and second in its half of the last inning, but failed to score. "It was," allowed a jubilant Guear after the game, "the biggest win of my life. No doubt about it."

Smyth with three hits and Comerford with two accounted for all the hits yielded by Guear. Baxter was touched for six hits, all singles, in absorbing the loss.

The loss was costly for Ficarro's as Grove Plumbing edged Miler Lite, 6-5, the same evening and took over first place with a 12-2 record and an .857 percentage.

Ficarro's was nudged into second place with a 13-3 record and an .812 percertage. Three Seasons was a half game behind in third place at 12-3, as the three teams continued their season-long battle for first place.

With its win, Dot's improved to 9-7. Eagle Electric and Vermeer are tied at 8-7 and Miller Lite is all even at 7-7.
